Angel Ellis

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma — If a free press is watchdog of the people's democracy then a Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) emboldens with penalties and appeals processes are the hound's tooth. When the Muscogee (Creek) Nation passed it's first ever FOIA law in July it could have set new precedence for citizen empowerment through government transparency.

MCN NC Rep. Mark Randolph began championing NCA 20-017 introduced on March 9. It was passed with a unanimous support July 23, and later adopted into law.

"NCA 20-017 is a great service to the Muscogee (Creek) people by creating transparency in the tribal government," Randolph said about the bill. "Mvskoke Citizens are equal stakeholders in the business of the Nation and for that reason have the right to information pertaining to the affairs of this government."

The bill was not immediately adopted when first introduced. It took collaboration between lawmakers and the MCN Attorney General Office.

"I would like to thank the Attorney General's office and Alicia Stroble for all the research and time that went into this bill," Randolph said.

Some exchanges of information were protected under other laws. The FOIA law is the first and most comprehensive law to ever be adopted that outlines, the process of requesting documents, which docu-

WITH BACK TO SCHOOL SEASON IN FULL-SWING, INFECTION RATES AMONG TEENAGERS AND COLLEGE STUDENTS HAS DOUBLED

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma-Muscogee (Creek) Nation's COVID-19 taskforce member Dr. David Kendrick shared some sobering statistics. Positivity rates (the percentage of COVID-19 tests performed that are positive), are again on the rise across the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Reservation.

With back-to-school season in full-swing, infection rates among teenagers and college-aged students has doubled since July and is the fastest growing group of positive cases.

Although young populations typically recover, the clear trend is for the infection to spread to older populations, ultimately putting elders and vulnerable populations at risk.

Kendrick states that proper masking can curb infection rates.

"The data shows that masking policies are an effective way to counter the community spread of COVID-19. Communities with mandates have greater reductions in the percent of positive tests," Kendrick said. MyHealth is an Oklahoma-based health information exchange, linking more than 4,000 providers and 4 million patients statewide into a community-wide health information system. Data collected shows that over time, communities with mask mandates have increasingly lower positivity rates when compared to cities without a mandate.

A new MyHealth analysis shows that 28 days after mask mandates went into effect for six of Oklahoma's largest cities, those cities had a 4.6% lower positivity score than cities without masking policies.

Tulsa is seeing a noticeable difference in positivity rates as a result of its mask mandate with 5.6% decline 28 days after the policy's effective date.

Many tribal health facilities, including the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Department of Health (MCNDH), contribute hospital and clinic data to MyHealth and utilize my MyHealth data to manage and respond to population health trends. Kendrick noted that upon seeing community trends ments can be requested, which documents are not considered public record, how a citizen can request those documents and it even outlines the process to appeal if a citizen feels they have been wrongfully denied access to information.

MCN Assistant Attorney General Kevin Dellinger said the bill is about reinforcing transparency in government.

"The purpose of the law is to ensure equal access to public records by our citizens," Dellinger said. "Things that need and should be shared, it gives citizens the ability access things that they haven't been able to access in the past."

"The law does a good job of defining what is public record and what is considered confidential."

The law states, 'It is the official policy of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation that all citizens shall have access to the public records of the Nation's department and programs and other records including, but not limited to resolutions, ordinances, minutes, all transactions involving loans, descriptions of tribal lands, the leasing and exchanging of tribal lands and records regarding any tribal contractor.'

The law also lists about 26 specific types of documents that would be considered public unless deemed confidential for a reasons outlined in the law.

"One misconception might be that confidential information would be given out but it's not written for that purpose," Dellinger said. "There are for instance restrictions on health records, personnel, some fragile historic documents that are deemed too fragile to be copied, culturally protected sites, are a few things withheld."

While some record access has always been a provision of MCN law, this law more clearly defines what is accessible, and it provides provisions for appeal

According to Dellinger there are some simple steps to make a request for records. The law outlines the process.

First a citizen who would

'Shall receive a response within 20 business days.'

The response should let the requesting party know if their request is granted or denied, whether or not they have requested information from the proper entity, or if an extension of an additional 20 days is needed for the request to be fulfilled.

The law also specifically designates an employee within the Office of the Attorney General as an Information Officer who will be responsible for facilitating, gathering, tracking and responding to FOIA requests. The position will serve as a liaison to citizens seeking information.

The law also provides legal avenues to appeal if a person feels their request has been unreasonably denied. A citizen who receives a denial of record request may challenge the denial my making a claim for record access in Court within ninety days from the denial date.

The court would then review the claim and on its determination the decision could be made to deny, disclose in part or whole the public record if determined not to be exempt.

"The appeal could even elevate to the MCN Supreme Court," Dellinger said.

MCN FOIA also imposes penalties for unlawful disclosure of protected or confidential information under the FOIA law. Disclosing information that is deemed confidential or destroys a record could be fined $1,000 to $5,000. The same penalties could be implemented for anyone who does not fulfill a records request that is deemed valid.

One exception and perhaps the closest legal language the tribe has every seen resembling a whistleblower clause is SS-9-112 subsection C. It protects an employee who has reasonable belief they are exposing corruption.

The law states, 'It is a defense to a civil action under subsection A of this section that the public employee release of protected information in a reasonable belief that the disclosure of the information was necessary to expose a violation of law involving government corruption, abuse of office or misappropriation of public funds or property.' The Executive Branch of MCN has made a statement in support of the move towards transparency through the Director of Communications Jason Salsman. "FOIA is essential to any government that wishes to provide transparency and accountability to citizens and we are privileged to be one of the few tribal Nations to have such a law," Salsman said. Citizens who have an interest in requesting documents with through FOIA processes are encouraged to review the law outlining the proceedures to submit requests.

While the project does not have monsters Steinsiek will be working on prosthetics and trauma effects. He says he has even worked on children's films.

in a COVID-19 dashboard produced by MyHealth, MCNDH was quick to respond with mask mandates at tribal facilities to protect citizens.

Kendrick also reported that, according to MyHealth data, MCNDH has the fastest testing rate in the state. Many in Oklahoma have had to wait days and sometimes even weeks to get their results back.

At MCNDH facilities, rapid tests and results are reported within an hour on average, which is important to containing community spread.

making it harder for those who battle any suicidal thoughts or depression. He thinks there are fear of the unknown, and that there is factors of what the pandemic has done like economic factors of people losing their jobs.

"I think it's harder for some people if they are by themselves, if they don't have someone they can talk too, if they lost their jobs or if they lost someone to COVID-19," Stone said. "So I think it's been tougher. We've seen an increase of people texting the hotline."

Right now it is hard for the grant program to track down those who are suffering. They are trying to collaborate with outside agencies to get a better understanding of the impact of suicide through local law enforcements and funeral homes. Stone added people can help prevent suicide by reaching out to someone they know who is struggling and ask, "how are they doing?" Some may also ask a deeper question like, "are you feeling suicidal?" It might be a scary question to ask, but also it could lead into a conversation and help the person feel better. "We offer suicide prevention trainings that usually takes 45 minutes to an hour, where we take it step-by-step into asking questions," Stone said. "We start with questions like, 'are you feeling suicidal' and if they are then say, let me

"There will eventually be a form that can be filled out for the requests but that is still being finalized," Dellinger said.

Once a request has been submitted, it will then be transferred to the MCN Attorney Generals Office to determine if that request is a public record. The citizen making the request

"Native people are impacted by suicide more than the U.S. population," Stone said. "It's the fifth leading cause of death for Indian males, and second cause of death for Native Americans 10 to 34."

The grant program focuses more on the 10 to 24 age group, because they make up 64 percent of suicides that happen in Indian Territory. The stats are not focused on Oklahoma but other states that have tribal representation.

AG YOUTH PROGRAM LOOKING TO PROVIDE MORE 4-H OR FFA SERVICES TO STUDENTS

Morgan Taylor REPORTER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma – The Muscogee (Creek) Nation Division of Agriculture and Natural Resources Ag Youth Program is seeking to apply for the Oklahoma Scholastic Shooting Sports Program (OKSSSP) funds through the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation.

The OKSSSP is a trap-based shotgun program that focuses on providing an environment that is safe and fun for seventh to twelfth graders. The funding provides coverage for the cost of a kit that includes a gun safe, target thrower, 20 boxes of targets, 20 pairs of safety glasses, and 600 pair of earplugs. The cost of the kit is around $2,000.00. Kits are only available for high school level teams.

On Aug 11, the Land, Resources and Cultural Preservation Committee passed TR 20-142 which is the legislation authorizing the Principal to Chief to execute a cooperative agreement-pass through federal assistance grant application with the Oklahoma Department of Wildlife Conservation.

Director of MCN Division of Agriculture and Natural Resources Trent Kissee spoke to the committee about the grant funds and what they would be used for if awarded the funds.

'We are looking to add to the Ag Youth Program a shooting sports component to go along with our archery for students that are already engaged with their FFA or 4-H shooting sports clave program, shot gun sports,' Kissee said. 'This grant would allow us to partner with the state to provide training, PPE, and also provide a clay pigeon thrower which is about $1,000. Thankfully we have already identified some funds to go along with this program.'

When legislation TR 20-142 came up in the Regular Session it passed with flying colors in a 14-0 vote of the National Council with Rep. Travis Scott absent. The MCN Ag Youth Program manager Billy Haltom says this will allow the Ag Youth Program to offer shotgun sports.

"The legislation allows us to go ahead and move forward in the direction of having skeet and track shooting," Haltom said. "Skeet and track shooting have become so popular in the school system 4-H and FFA that it become one the biggest activities these organizations are having. We were never to help our Creek youth due to some legislative problems but now that is all taken care of were looking not to only put on some competitions but have our own program where our Creek youth will be able to come up and use our equipment including shotguns, clay pigeons and thrower under the supervision of myself and another trained adult."

Most students are already involved in this program through their own 4-H and FFA chapters without the support of the Nation, however should they receive this grant it will allow them to receive more education and training in the skill.

"The initial $2,000 dollars will provide a little bit of education for me and one other person to become certified in that area and purchase equipment," Haltom said. "That's going to include our skeet thrower, clay pigeon, and shotgun shells and what we need to get our program set up."

The Ag Youth Program has other portions to the program to assist participants in various areas. The Livestock Assistance Program helps the purchase of a livestock animal for participants with reimbursement up to $500.

"Our biggest thing is our livestock showing program," Haltom said. "Everything we do is on reimbursement, but we will give a student up to $500 to purchase some type of livestock. We also put on the Creek Nation All-Indian Livestock Show for the students as well in Jan every year."

Other programs include the archery assistance, leadership training assistance and poultry program assistance. Each of these programs provide reimbursements of purchases up to different amounts depending on the program.

"The Agriculture Youth Program is set up to help our Creek youth to better participate in both 4-H and FFA," Haltom said. "Our goal of this program is to have our Creek youth become more involved in both 4-H and FFA for leadership activities, livestock showings and the other things that go along with those two organizations."

CITIZEN CREATES NATIVE AMERICAN FASHION USING WRAP BEAD STYLE BEADING

MUSCOGEE (CREEK) CITIZEN RILEY BERRY USES BEADING TO STAY CONNECTED WITH HIS CULTURE AS WELL AS CREATING AUTHENTIC ARTWORK

Morgan Taylor REPORTER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma-Today, many people wear and have items displaying Native American culture, which has become trendy and high fashion.

Local Muscogee (Creek) citizen, Riley Berry keeps it traditional by using skills someone taught him.

"I bead, mainly wrap bead style. I also am starting a clothing line with a couple of my buddies," Berry said. "I first started beading in high school, with a loom; then, I picked it up again once I attended the College of the Muscogee Nation from my friend Millie Wilson, my mvhayv (teacher)."

Beading is a commonly practiced craft between all tribes of Native American descent. Modern beading includes using decorative beads of various types and colors to create a patterned accessory or jewelry. Some make bracelets, earrings, and necklaces, key chains, etc.

In history, stones, shells quills, and carved bones were used in beading.

Although techniques and styles have changed over the centuries, beading is still an important aspect of the culture.

Berry says he picked up the skill rather quickly but still finds himself learning something new each time.

"Man, it didn't take me long too learn," Berry said. "I picked it up pretty quickly, mainly because I had a good teacher. I have been beading for about two years now, and I haven't mastered beading yet, but every time I make a new piece I get better."

In beading, each piece is made by hand by weaving tiny colored beads together using a thread and needle. Each piece is different than the next, allowing room for artist expression in beading.

Berry has four main items he creates as well as taking custom orders for his customers.

"I have four main items I make: wristlets ($25) bracelets ($20) necklaces ($45) lanyards ($60), along with apple watch bands, vans, hat bands, wrapped earrings. I do take custom orders, mainly from friends or people that have seen my work." Berry said. "Becoming a beader, you are an artist. Creating designs is what distinguishes you, and allows you to have your own unique style."

What Berry enjoys most about beading is the connection it brings him and what it teaches him each time he creates a piece.

"I am a civil engineer, so building, creating something is my favorite thing to do. Beading lets me do exactly that, but within a cultural setting," Berry said. "I like how it teaches. It teaches me to have patience, it teaches me to be tedious-that every detail matters, it connects me with all kinds of new people, people from our tribe, people from across the country. I also like beading because it gives me some peace. If I have a lot going on I like to bead. Just go to my desk, turn on the office and bead. It's relaxing, and then I poke my finger or break my needle and then I'm not so relaxed anymore."

Patience is one of the most

important aspects of beading according to Berry. Beading has taught him how to be patient while allowing him to reconnect himself with Native American culture.

"If you want to learn beading you have to have patience. Seems like every time your moving right along on a project your thread knots up, your needle breaks, you drop beads, you can't rethread your needle, you run out of a certain color," Berry said. "Having patience is the biggest thing if you want to learn how to bead, if you don't have it when you start you will after. For someone that wants to reconnect to our culture or wants to learn more, beading is a great way to do so. Also, Facebook has different Native American Beadwork groups for selling, tips, and inspiration you can add. The people on there are very helpful if you have any questions. Beading is Indigenous resistance and continuity."

Being original is how to be distinguished as an artist. Each person will find different ways to draw inspiration in their artwork. Berry elaborates on some of the different ways he stays inspired in his artwork that helps him to continue creating original pieces.

"The best advice I would give to someone beading is to not steal designs from other artists. You can look at other beadwork for inspiration, new colorways, different technique, just don't copy what their artwork. Beading for me, I get into different moods," Berry said. "Some days I work with mainly fire colors, then others (Submission)

I will use different shades of one color. Colorways are the hardest part about being (along with creating a design that is symmetrical). Picking out colors what go good with each other, I often look at sports teams and their colorways or just guess and go with it. When creating a brand-new design that I haven't beaded before, I just go for it. I start beading and don't worry about whether or not it will be symmetrical so that I can be most creative."

Those who are interested in seeing more of Berry's work or seeking him out for more information can add him as friend on Facebook at Riley Berry.

The Mvskoke Market located inside the Solomon McCombs Building on the MCN tribal complex also sells pieces of Berry's work.

MCN CFSA LOOKS TO BUILD INTERNAL STRUCTURES IN POST-MCGIRT GOVERNMENT AGREEMENTS

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma — The Muscogee (Creek) Nation has been making plans to bolster services for the MCN Children and Family Services after the SCOTUS decision that reaffirmed the MCN Reservation Boundaries. Recent legislation has passed through the tribes National Council that MCN Director of Children and Family Services Kimmie Wind Hummingbird says will help the department provide stable homes for foster children.

After the recent SCOTUS opinion many jurisdictional issues came into question. Indian Child Welfare was one of those issues. Post McGirt tribes felt pressure from the State of Oklahoma to enter into agreements to close jurisdictional gaps. With the state pressuring the MCN to enter into agreements, tribal citizens who worried that agreements with state entities might undercut sovereignty took to social media voices concerns over legislation such as the government-to-government agreements.

Hummingbird said that the agreements were essential to the protection of children.

"These agreements have been long standing and we have worked along side the state for many years," Hummingbird said. "The intergovernmental agreement allows for the Muscogee (Creek) Nation to properly and responsibly handle the influx of cases that are involved with all Indian children on our reservation."

"But there is a need for us to build infrastructure internally so that we can support that massive amount of Indian Children that we would be working with."

The first agreement was turned down on July 21, when it failed to garner the majority vote of the council. It failed by a 5-10 vote.

The legislation resurfaced just nine days later in an emergency session where it was adopted unanimously. It was the only piece of legislation considered on the agenda for the meeting that lasted just under an hour.

Assistant Attorney General JoEtta Toppah addressed the council explaining the bill.

"First I want to emphasize that this agreement does not waive any of the Nations sovereignty or give up jurisdiction," Toppah said. "In fact in it has language to protect the Nations exclusive jurisdiction."

"We are simply trying to work with the State of Oklahoma for Indian Children located within the Nations reservation."

Toppah said that this agreement was similar to a cross deputation agreement.

"Not passing this agreement could prove reckless and negligent to our children," Toppah said.

She said that the agreement allows the tribe to cancel the agreement for any case with a 90-day notice.

"This agreement still allows the tribe to enter into any MLU's that the tribe deems needed in the future," Toppah said. "It would allow the tribe to bring any of these cases into our tribal court.

When McGirt was in oral arguments Justice Kagan asked specifically about child welfare cases. Kagan asked about the impact of ruling with the tribes as it pertains to adoption and foster care proceedings.

The tribe's attorney responded to Kagan stating, "The Oklahoma DHS and the Nation cooperate in every ICWA case, and we have a terrific relationship, and have both been involved with the placement of Indian Children. That will not change."

MVSKOKEMARKET

THE MVSKOKE MARKET IS OWNED BY

Toppah said that it was with that consideration that the tribe should demonstrate its ability to work with agencies to benefit the children in care.

"All the departments dealing with these cases want to exercise their jurisdiction to the greatest extent possible," Toppah said. "But we need time to develop the infrastructure to handle those cases responsibly."

"We want to protect these children in this time of transition."

The council asked questions of Riyaz Kanji who represented the tribe in the United States Supreme Court. He said that the topic of child welfare was a key point for the Supreme Court to uphold reservation boundaries.

"The State made a huge deal out of child welfare, the state argued that all these children would be turned out of homes," Kanji said. "They did that with intent because they knew it was a hot button issue."

"We told the courts that this would not be an issue because there was an legal mechanism for the Nation to work with the State."

Hummingbird said that the department is working on strategic planning to grow.

"While the plans for expanding are not yet finalized we do recognize that we are going to have to grow, and we have to grow quickly," Hummingbird said. "There is going to be some building and we are excited to this on."

"My goal is for us to be most trauma informed Indian child welfare team possible."

She even thinks there will be a time when these kinds of agreements won't be needed.

"Our intent is to have this agreement dissolved at some point in the future," Hummingbird said.

ENVIRONMENTAL SERVICES ACHIEVES AWARD FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Lani Hansen

SENIOR WRITER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma- Muscogee (Creek) Nation Environmental Office has completed another year of Sustainable Tulsa ScoreCard on the Verified Platinum Level.

The Sustainable Tulsa Score-Card is an online sustainability tracking assessment. It is comprised of different cornerstones, which are communication, community stewardship, energy, healthy work environment, material management, transportation and water.

In order to score platinum level, the environmental office had to make sure all the cornerstones were covered. They had some key performance indicators to help the numbers of the cornerstones.

"One of our highlights was our KPI points were 65, we got quite a bit of those," Director of Environmental Services James Williams said. "We got a score of 119 out of 120 possible points so we scored real good."

On the different categories for communication they put out different newsletters, articles for the paper or something on their efforts.

Community stewardship is when they host Earth Day. They were able to get some points for having volunteers from the tribe on Earth Day and National Recycle Day.

The National Recycle Day goes along with their healthy work environment for points.

"Our healthy work environment we try to recycle around here," Williams said. "Everyone uses their coffees cups to stir away from Styrofoam cups."

For energy, environmental's office building has a new air conditioner but they are trying to conserve a little energy by turning things off. Before leaving they turn off their computers and lights in restrooms or offices. The transportation part they have two hybrid

"We're the ones who are putting charging stations in front of the Chief's office those will be available any day now," Williams said. "Those will be for employees and citizens, we're hoping that as cheap as electric cars are now we'll start seeing more of a trend. They are affordable and you don't have to buy gas, it's just a little bit of electric. You don't have to change any oil but still have to check brakes and tires."

The water part is where environmental stresses good water quality. Some of the water aspects Williams talks about are using less water while doing dishes or taking a shower.

"But it looks like we scored pretty high in those categories," Williams said. "They have a category in participation, bronze, silver, gold and platinum. Last year we received the gold category but this year we achieved platinum. So we're real enthused about that one. We do have an assistant sustainable person who works on our staff, she treats this like her baby."

This is the third year for the environmental office to participate in the scorecard. The first year they scored in participation, last year they set their efforts and was awarded in the gold and this year they are on top. Last year there was 74 companies competing compared to this year with only 59 companies.

"We have to have communication, promotion, employee engagement which comes from the tribe and admin," Williams stated about getting platinum on the scorecard.

"We work for the Secretary of Interior Mr. Jesse Allen and we're glad he's on board with us, also the Chief and Second Chief. They are fully aware of what we do and we like to have them on our side."

Now that the environmental office has been awarded the platinum, they are eligible to compete in the Henry Bellmon award. This award is presented to the most sustainable company that's participated and so the environmental office will be in the running this fall.

"I just want to thank the environmental services group, they have all worked hard. It was a team effort, we knew in order to get the platinum we'd have to work together," Williams said. "We would just like our tribe to be more sustainable by saving energy and save a little money."

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH UPGRADES HEALTH FACILITIES THROUGHOUT LOCATIONS

ONGOING PROJECTS FOR THE HEALTH FACILITIES WILL KEEP THE DEPARTMENT BUSY FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Lani Hansen SENIOR WRITER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma-Muscogee (Creek) Nation Department of Health began working on projects to upgrade health facilities to patients satisfaction.

"The Department of Health has done well financially in the last couple of years and we're starting to build some reserves," Secretary of Health Shawn Terry said. "So when it comes to entering in our facilities we always want our patients to be proud of where they're coming."

There are about 20 projects going on for the MCN health facilities. These projects include expansions, renovations, upgrades and painting projects.

The Koweta pharmacy refill center will be adding on space to the building. The reason they wanted to add on is due to the high volume of pharmaceuticals being shipped from the refill center a shipping space is needs.

"The pharmacy refill center came about, after we opened the refill center we were expecting to do 1,500 to 2,00 prescriptions a day," Terry stated. "Because of COVID and us turning on our automatic refills we grew to 3,500 prescriptions a day almost immediately."

The Sapulpa Clinic has expanded an additional space for the Diabetes and Optometry programs. The annex will allow an addition of four exam rooms. The Sapulpa Clinic is one of the smallest clinics for MCNDOH.

"There was an opportunity to rent an office space that used to be a pediatrics office around the corner from our main clinic," Health Administrator Becky Whitlow said. "When this became available we were looking at it and trying to figure out the best option and how we can utilize this space. This gave our optometry department more space to work with to see our patients."

The emergency room at the Okmulgee Medical Center is in the process of being redesigned. According to Terry, the new design will give the emergency room four new exam rooms, expand the waiting room and make the patient registration flow easier.

"We have been working over the last year of finishing all of the parking lots inside the hospital campus," Terry said.

The medical center is getting a hot water upgrade and elevator upgrade. There has already been three elevators replaced and two are being modernized. All of the buildings on the medical center campus are being painted on the exterior.

"We are trying to expand the LTAC beds that's at the physical rehabilitation center," Terry said. "Currently we have four LTAC beds and we are going to expand up to 14 LTAC beds, and it'll make a huge difference getting our patients in and take care of them."

MCNDOH has began an analysis of a Riverwalk Clinic in Jenks. During Phase One, they expect it to be a Telemedicine center with a team of nurses and a nurse practicioner that will be taking medicine phone calls. The COVID hotline will be moved to this location and a pharmacy will be added.

In the medical center twelve new beds will be added to the second floor on 2 East and also for 2 West. The pharmacy drive-up window will be redesigned for safe and easy access.

"We have lack of space on the Okmulgee campus, but we are going to put in a modular building for our Diabetes program," Terry added.

Terry continued to list other projects going on at the medical center. The heat and air system is being updated to the server room and the PACU area. The 40-year0old generator at the medical center will be replaced with a new generator. The Behavioral Health is getting a new building, to be completed in early 2022.

"So that's just many of the projects we have got going right now, and that going to keep us busy for the next several years," Terry said. Since MCN took over the medical center there has been over 15 to 30 millions dollars worth of getting the medical center up to code. The roof, flooring, fixtures and sinks have been renovated over the years.

"Over the next two years will be the final push to get everything upgraded and refreshed," Terry said.

Suicide Prevention Awareness Month

The Elephant in the Room

Hesci,

My name is Tyler Stone and I am the Project Director for the Native Connections grant. I want to talk to you today about a word that most of us find scary - suicide. Suicide is the 10th leading cause of death in the United States. There are 132 deaths in the US by suicide every single day. This raises the question, why aren't we taught how to help someone thinking about suicide? Are we just too afraid to talk about it? Very few of us are taught how to have the simple conversation about mental health, specifically suicide.

If your friend falls and breaks their leg, most of us wouldn't hesitate to rush them to the hospital to get help. But if your friend says they are depressed, have thoughts of self harm or suicide, the tendency is to avoid or change the subject because of the uncomfortableness of the subject and lack of knowing what to do. Some may have thoughts that "I might plant the idea of suicide into someone's head" or think "since I am not expert, I can't possibly help them". These are normal fears but we cannot let our fear hold us back from helping, especially when they are in crisis.

Learning how to get over your fears and ask the question is paramount. Asking is going to bring a lot of discomfort at first, but typically once the conversation starts the person starts to feel better, because you allowed them to share their feelings and feel less alone. By asking the question, the person feels valued. It's a simple "how are you doing?", "you seem down would you like to talk about it?", "how are you handling everything?", or the hardest one "are you feeling suicidal?".

Beware of the dangers of the "fine" response. It is often used to stop the conversation because it is uncomfortable for both individuals. Letting them know you really want to know or re-asking the question is often needed to break the uncomfortable ice. This opens the door to share thoughts and feelings they have bottled up and not shared with anyone. Everyone needs to feel valued and heard. Being willing to ask the question and listen is vital when someone is in crisis.

We offer 1-hour trainings throughout the year to teach how to ask the questions and access resources. We will post upcoming trainings on the MCN Tribal and Department of Health Facebook page and the Behavioral Health web page (http://www.creekhealth.org/behavioral-health/). We are also available to schedule this training for any group or organization upon request.

We hope you can participate in any of these upcoming trainings. Together we can save lives through learning, asking and being proactive when we see the need.

If you or someone you know is experiencing anxiety, worry, fear, stress, or even depression and you feel like talking to someone about would help, contact Muscogee (Creek) Nation Behavioral Health at 918-758-1910. • Text "Creek" to 741-741 if you or someone you know is in a crisis.

has a background in 3-D modeling and design. He was tasked in leading an additive manufacturing initiative for the company. He has been in additive manufacturing for the company around five years. He learned about 3-D modeling online and through work.

The 3-D printing allows the company to reconsider the shape of holes in a design instead of drilling round holes, the part is built with flat openings to improve atomization and increase burner efficiency. The new atomizer saves money and time for customers.

According to an interview with Mvskoke Radio on Aug. 12, Harjo says they have several products; one is known as the UHT atomizer that stands for ultra-high turndown atomizer. John Zink has understood that using atomizers to improve the fuel-air mix inside burners is one easy way to help customers minimize their environmental footprint.

"An atomizer basically mixes fuel and steams so that it burns very efficiently," Harjo said. "It's installed in burners and in this case, it was a steamed proposal burner that's installed on a large tanker ship."

Some of the engineers for the company came up with a new design that can only be 3-D printed. This design gave a large performance increase over the previously traditionally manufactured atomizer. The engineers used an original drawing for 3-D printing, modeling a burner tip and printed a part on the system.

"When I say significant, the performance increase was around 70 percent so that's a big jump," Harjo said about new printer. "It saves the customer a lot of fuel and it was a great design."

Harjo has a passion for technology and innovation. The company has guiding principles that employees follow such as; Integrity, Stewardship and Compliance, Principled Entrepreneurship, Transformation, Knowledge, Humility, Respect and Self-Actualization. His guiding principle is transformation.

"I work for a company where transformation isn't something we do every day, it's who we are at the core of our culture," Harjo said about his work. "I was very excited and motivated to dig into this technology and bring as much value as possible."

Working for this company and working with technology is an accomplishing career goal for Harjo. He enjoys working for John Zink; Harjo is able to do what he is passionate about as a job. He even said he gets excited to go into work.

As a Muscogee (Creek) citizen the company of John Zink is diverse and Harjo said there are other employees who represent other tribes.

"It's a great company to work for, I'm proud to be there and proud of my Creek heritage also as a John Zink employee," Harjo said.

Harjo learned what he does by taking a class through MIT over additive manufacturing. There are also ways to learn about manufacturing through YouTube videos and websites.

MUSCOGEE (CREEK) CITIZEN STARTS PSYCHIC BUSINESS

JOHNNY "FIVE" DAVIS, PROVIDES PSYCHIC SERVICES TO THE PUBLIC

Morgan Taylor REPORTER

CONWAY, Arkansas - Johnny Davis is a 29-year-old Tulsa native and a Muscogee (Creek) citizen who claims to have psychic abilities. Johnny goes by his alias 'Johnny Five' as a psychic and also as an author. Currently, "Five" has two books he self-published called Sleep Paralysis and Revelation 2020 Psychic Sight.

"I wrote these books to teach people how to cleanse themselves internally, how to see energy with the physical eye and how to meditate," Five said. "For those with sleep paralysis, I wrote a book teaching them to clarify on this phenomenon and also how to prevent it from happening, as this effects people internationally and science has no explanation for it. Being a victim of it myself since a child, I discovered how to prevent it and what is actually taking place."

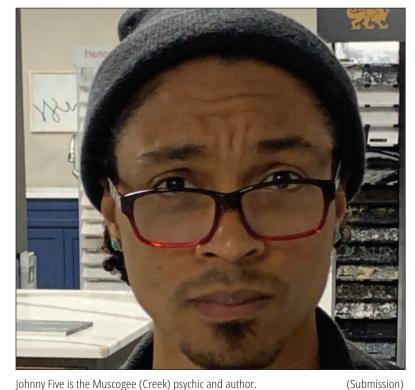

Being victim of sleep paralysis, Five claims he was forced into his psychic abilities because of the spiritual activity that went on when he was a kid and it became part of his reality eventually.

"Growing up it was a little weird for me, I always had trouble sleeping at night. I always saw these beings at night when I would go to sleep," Five said. "They would you know, attack me all the time. I would tell people about it and even as I got older people thought it I was making it up or something. People never believed anything they felt like was outside the norm and that was my reality."

In Feb, Five started a business where he provides his psychic services.

Most of his work is done in Conway, AR where he now resides although he claims he can offer his services via telecommunication or he may travel if need be. Services include: spiritual coaching, aura reading, oracle reading via cards, house cleansing, barrier protection, nightmare removal, spirit animal readings and crystal therapy.

"I have clients throughout the USA and also in the UK, Germany, Hungary and London," Five said.

Johnny Five is the Muscogee (Creek) psychic and author.

"I can connect to anyone anywhere in the world through text, phone, or video, it doesn't matter. Without knowing any prior information about them I can them everything about their current situation in life, natural traits, if they have lost a close relative or friend and if they have nightmares I can take those away too. I can do a lot of things and I share my knowledge with all, it's my purpose to serve humanity."

Five believes by offering his services for free, discounted, or bartering he helps serve humanity is his own wav.

"I am very much a spiritual warrior and there is no place I won't go to help a family," Five said. "I will even do it for free if some can't afford it because the Creator will take care of me for taking care of people so I don't worry about the compensation."

During his time of practicing his psychic abilities, Five has been ridiculed and called many names. Many have said was a fake but he claims it doesn't bother him.

"People have called me a freak, some have called me a shaman, they have even called me an exorcist," Five said. "When people have these negative comments I offer to do a service for them for free to help change their mind. For the most part, I receive positive feedback in my work. Most looking to me for services seek me out." The most requested service is the Aura Reading, according to Five, this can be done via social media messaging (Facebook/Instagram), text, phone, video, but best in person.

"Our Aura is energy in color form that emanates from our spines that represent our energy," Five said. "I have only seen the seven colors of the rainbow, and each of those colors represent characteristics of a person. These are sometimes referred to as our chakras."

As Johnny Five provides many more services, those seeking spiritual help and guidance or even questions can seek him out through social media where he can perform most services and operate his business.

His books can be found on amazon kindle or almost any other online platform and is sold in 13 different stores in Oklahoma, Texas, Tennessee, Missouri and Arkansas. For more questions contact Johnny through his facebook profile Johnny52020 or instagram j 5_2020.

'The MVSKOKE News' explanation of text size limitations

One issue is compatibility between our paper layout program and those used by MCN Finance/Human Resources to compile the information. We place the documents they submit directly in our program rather than pulling each individual's information. This is done in order to save a significant amount of time and drastically eliminate the margin for error on our end. The submitted files create a scaling issue in the way they are sized in contrast to the newspaper pages. The other involves the number of pages we can afford in our budget for each edition.
