MUSCOGEE NATION NIGHT HELD AT ONEOK FIELD TULSA DRILLERS HOSTS NIGHT DEDICATED TO MUSCOGEE CULTURE AND LANGUAGE

Morgan Taylor
REPORTER

TVLSE, Oklahoma – The Tulsa Drillers hosted Muscogee Nation Night June 25 at ONEOK Field, which held a ceremony of pregame events. Events included Muscogee Matriarch, Pearl Thomas singing the National Anthem in the Muscogee language, introduction of Miss Muscogee Nation Claudia McHenry and Principal Chief Hill throwing the first pitch. Muscogee Nation Marketing and Tourism Director Kyle Lee worked directly with the Tulsa Drillers over the last three years on this event. "I have met with the Drillers about our partnership that we have had each year and wanted to make it more robust and a bigger way to promote our culture," Lee said. According to Lee, an idea came together about the team wearing jerseys saying "Tvlse" was established. "They loved the idea and that was how it all started," he said. "Having the National Anthem sung in our language, having the Chief throw the first pitch, this is our third year getting to showcase our culture and our language to thousands of people." Each year thus far, a new jersey design has been put out. Lee claims this year's design may be the final design for now. The jerseys worn by the players were auctioned off following the game to benefit the Muscogee Nation Scholarship Foundation. Other than the Scholarship Foundation, the Muscogee Nation does not profit from this event Lee stated. "We spend money on this to give our employees an opportunity to attend the games by buying tickets," Lee said. "We don't make any money off this, we are just here to be proud of our culture, our language and our partnership with the Drillers because they are also within our reservation boundaries." "Its just a good way to connect with the community." The Muscogee Nation purchased around 800 tickets for its employees for this year's Muscogee Nation Night. The COVID-19 pandemic affected the event last year due to CDC guidelines, but Lee claimed the Drillers participated in the Texas Collegiate League where they wore the "Tvlse" jerseys for the 2020 season. The Muscogee Nation Department of Health took the opportunity for the event to distribute vaccines to game attendees and even passersby. "We just want to make it available to anyone who is interested, that is our goal when we bring this out in the community to get as many vaccines in the arm as we can," MN Department of Health Chief Executive

WILEY DISCUSSED RECENT CHANGES TO MCN LAW

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma– On May 22, the National Council overrode a Veto Message from Principal Chief Hill concerning NCA 21-045. NCA 21-045 created a new law called "Government Records," which appeared to give the National Council the power to request any documents directly from department heads concerning employees. Attorney General Roger Wiley claims he had no involvement in the creation of the law, but did feel like it presented a problem. "I was asked if I had any issues with it and the issue I had with it was Section 9- 104 D, originally," Wiley said. "This provided that no records were confidential."

TWINS WRESTLE TO THE TOP MUSCOGEE TWIN BROTHERS PLACE AT THE STATE TOURNAMENT AS FRESHMAN

REPORTER

EDMOND, Oklahoma– Muscogee citizens and twin brothers, Brayden and Christian Belford were starting freshman on Edmond North's wrestling team. Being a starter as a freshman was a great accomplishment for both brothers as the team carries a winning reputation. Both Belford boys placed fourth at the 6A Oklahoma State Championship on February 27, 2021 at Jim Norick Arena in OKC. Christian competed in the 106-weight class while Brayden wrestled in the 120-weight class. The Belford's were part of a historic Edmond North wrestling team that broke school and state records. Edmond North head wrestling coach Andy Schneider knew the boys would be a welcome addition to the program. "I've known Brayden and Christian since they were very young in our youth program," Schneider said. "I was always excited that they'd be on our high school team one day." "If there's a workout being offered, they are there every time and this work ethic translates into them not only making the varsity lineup as freshman but also becoming 6A State Medalist." Wrestling plays a role in family history for the Belford's. The boys' father, Carl Belford, was a wrestler during grade school through college. Carl had over 1,100 wins, a state championship and 249 individual tournaments before starting his college-wrestling career at the University of Oklahoma on scholarship for all four years. Carl was also awarded the 1983 Sports Illustrated Award of Merit and featured on ABC's 'That's Incredible' TV show. "I'm extremely proud of my sons and the hard work and sacrifice they have devoted to wrestling," Carl said. "Being able to watch my boys excel at a sport that has given so much to me is more rewarding than I could have ever imagined." "It's an honor to help guide them on their journeys." Brayden and Christian are continuing to train during this off-season to compete throughout the summer in local and national freestyle and Greco-Roman tournaments. "I look forward to watching and helping them improve as wrestlers while growing into great young men who continue to make me and their family proud,"

Ross claimed there were around 100 available doses and included Pfizer and Johnson & Johnson.

The crew was prepared to give first and second doses of the vaccine as well as establish second vaccine appointments if necessary.

The MN Department of Health used their mobile refrigerated vehicles to safely store vaccines while parked outside the ballpark.

“This is one of the most successful nights we host each year. It was our largest attendance of the 2021 season,” Tulsa Drillers Executive Vice President and Assistant General Manager Jason George said.

George stated the Tulsa Drillers Muscogee Nation Night was a sold out event.

“The Muscogee Nation has been a wonderful partner of the Drillers for many years, far beyond the three years when we started doing this particular night,” he said. “I think they are wonderful community partners and we are fortunate to be one of the benefactors of their support in the community.”

In the veto message, Chief refers to Ellis v. National Council in stating that, ‘NCA 07-191 recognizes the National Council’s investigatory powers were limited to validly issued subpoenas, the law also provides due process protections to employees and citizens, and the Principal Chief and Second Chief were immune from the law due to executive privilege.’

“I think it’s a cry into the wilderness because its legitimate request for records was not being addressed,” AG Wiley said about the legislation.

“Now the part about the subpoenas,” he said. “I disagree with that; I don’t think it is limited to validly issued subpoenas. We are running a dysfunctional government if we require one branch to get a subpoena before it can get simple records from another branch.”

AG Wiley said he believes the branches should work more cooperatively as a governmental body.

Under NCA 21-045, the National Council could also obtain employees personal records although the legislation provides protection under 9-104 G regarding due process protection.

“Laws can be taken to the extreme, but hopefully the branches can work together and exchange records freely as needed for legitimate reasons,” said.

On May 24, Principal Chief

Hill sent out a memorandum to all cabinet members and executive branch employees asking them not to recognize NCA 21-045 due to claims of unconstitutionality.

‘As a result, NCA 21-045 will not be enforced or recognized as valid law by the executive branch. All cabinet members and executive branch employees are to respond to information requests from the National Council members in accordance with previously established executive employment policy on legislative branch request for information/correspondence section 503 of the Human Resource Policy and Procedure Manual...’

AG Wiley is familiar with the memorandum and expressed concerns.

“I think anytime an elected official asks someone not to follow the law that’s a problem, and the law has not been set aside as unconstitutional,” AG Wiley said. “It should have been challenged if the claim is that it’s unconstitutional.”

Since the Principal Chief did not challenge the law, it is still an active law and can pose civil penalties for those who do not follow the legislation under the Penalties section.

“What I see is two branches of government clashing and the employees being stuck in the middle,” he said. “They don’t want to put themselves in a situation where they could lose their job because they think they’re following the law or because they’re doing what their supervisor told them to do.”

According to AG Wiley, the correct process would be for the Principal Chief to challenge this law by taking it to the district court for a declaratory judgment.

As of time of publication, no action has been made by the Principal Chief to do so.

On the Live Wire, AG Wiley also spoke briefly covering topics and updates on the McGirt ruling. The full interview can be watched at: <https://youtu.be/hM-VydVNmdg>.

REMEMBERING THE BATTLE OF HONEY SPRINGS

ORAL HISTORIAN

A memorial service commemorating the 158th anniversary of the Civil War engagement at Honey Springs, Muscogee Nation, will be held on Saturday, July 17, at 10:30 a.m. The event is free and open to the public. It will take place outside on the lawn of the Honey Springs Battlefield Visitor Center. Featured speakers include Honey Springs Battlefield Site Manager Adam Lynn, OHS Executive Director Trait Thompson, and OHS Northeast Regional Director David Fowler.

The Battle of Honey Springs is the largest Civil War battle to take place in Indian Territory and on Mvskoke lands. On July 17, 1863, 9000 Union and Confederate troops made up of Indigenous, Black, and white soldiers fought in the battle, side by side and against one another. Often referred to as the “Gettysburg of Indian Territory,” the battle brought great devastation to the ancestors of the Honey Springs settlement. Following the Civil War, the Muscogee Nation, its lands and people, would be left in decimation and ruin. And at the hands of the federal government, significant consequences would be faced by all nations and peoples living within Indian Territory.

The Civil War in Indian Territory is a somber and complex piece of Mvskoke history. Even so, it is important to understand and remember the “lived” experiences of all those Civil War ancestors who resided within the Muscogee Nation, as often their lives and Civil War story becomes diminished, even omitted from the over-arching narrative of this country’s most devastating, yet decisive era in American history. To omit the Muscogee Nation and its peoples from the historical happenings of mid-nineteenth-century America is to imply that either our ancestors never existed or that their lives do not matter.

As descendants, we know that neither is true.

AUDIO EPISODES OF NATIVE AMERICAN COMIC BOOK NATIVE VOICES AT THE AUTRY PRESENTS “THE NEW ADVENTURES OF SUPER INDIAN,” AVAILABLE FOR FREE UNTIL JULY 28

REPORTER

LOS ANGELES – Native Voices at the Autry presents The New Adventures of Super Indian, the works of Muscogee descendant and enrolled Kickapoo Tribal member Arigon Starr.

Starr is an award-winning musician, actor, and playwright, and a renowned comic book writer and artist. Her work with Native Voices at the Autry includes her comedy musical “The Red Road” and the radio comedy “Super Indian”. A former Tulsa Artist Fellow, she created the romantic comedy “Round Dance” for the Oklahoma Indigenous Theatre Company in 2018 during her fellowship. She is a member of SAG-AFTRA and Actors’ Equity.

“The New Adventures of Super Indian” is a spinoff of Starr’s original radio play, comedy “Super Indian” that debuted worldwide in 2007 on National Public Radio through a program developed by Native Voices.

At that time, Starr claimed the program had lost funding but she still wanted to create “Super Indian”. Starr continued to self-make the comedy and even published the comics as her own books since 2007.

The production of comedic superhero series is the first ever-audio episodes to be released by Native Voices as an alternative to the Zoom productions that had been taking place during the pandemic.

The audio episodes debuted online on the Autry’s website in April. However, due to the popularity the Autry has extended access to the episodes through their website until July 28.

Each audio includes an hour of Native American related comedy; Starr stated, “these are jokes for us (natives).”

Starr co-directed her production, played three different roles and worked with 16 different native cast members to play over 95 voices.

The main character, Super Indian/Hubert Logan is a normal guy who works as a janitor at the local bingo hall on the fictional reservation Leaning Oak. After eating radioactive commodity cheese, he develops superpowers. Through the course of the episodes the character faces villains while trying to maintain his normal life dealing with internal and external troubles as a young native man living on the reservation.

According to Starr the villains of Super Indian, like Wampum Baggs and Blud Kwan’Tum, represent different things including cultural appropriation messages.

“The whole thing has always been done for laughs and for humor,” Starr said. “Highlighting the fact that native people like to laugh no matter how dire the circumstances, we like to laugh.”

Starr claimed by using her own personal experiences, she’s able to express the different aspects of the life of a Native American by writing it in a comedic way.

Starr’s volume one and two of Super Indian can be purchased from the Redstick Gallery and on Amazon.

The audio episodes can be listened to until July 28 at: <https://theautry.org/events/performance-arts/native-voices-presents-new-adventures-super-indian>.

TRIBAL PROGRAM FOCUSES ON ROAD IMPROVEMENT ROADWAYS ARE UNDERGOING CONSTRUCTION IN SEVERAL COUNTIES

Morgan Taylor
REPORTER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma – In a Muscogee Nation National Council meeting in April, seven pieces of legislation were passed to begin the maintenance overlay project.

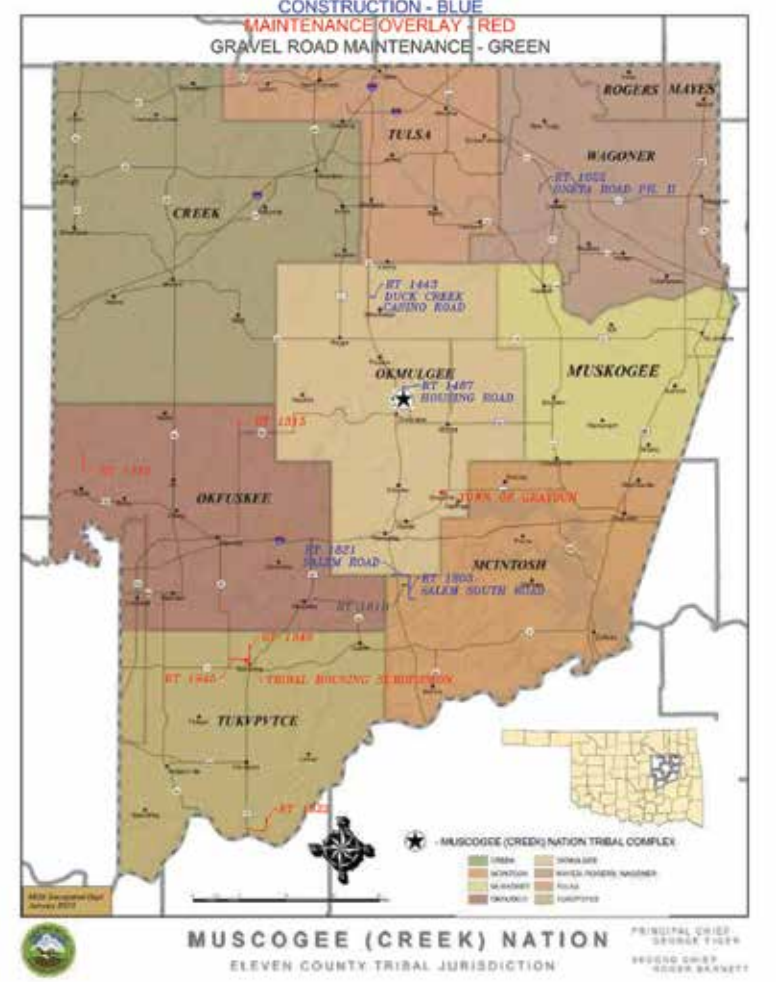

This project is funded by the Tribal Transportation Program and will provide maintenance up to 20 miles of roadways across the tribe’s reservation, an annual project in which the tribal program works on roads.

The project started on June 2 in Okfuskee County on a rural road located in Paden.

According to Tom Edwards, a consultant with Cross Timbers Consulting for the Federal Roads Program this part of the project will take about three days to complete before moving to the next roadway.

The project in its entirety will take three months to complete the list of roads included in the 20 mile Maintenance Overlay Project.

The project will include three

Map of the current roadwork projects. (Submission) county roads Rt 1945, 1946 and 1922 in Hughes County; three county roads Rt 142M, 1459, Rt 148K in Okmulgee County; two county roads Rt 1803 and E-1130 (Rt 1821) in McIntosh County; two county roads Rt 1315 and Rt 1322 in Okfuskee County.

Muscogee Nation Secretary of Interior Affairs Jesse Allen claims it’s a combination of entities that work together to determine the needs of maintenance.

“It’s a combination of working with the local city and county governments, the National Council and the (Principal) Chief’s office,” Allen said.

“They all make recommendations and we then go out and evaluate the project,” Edwards said. “It is then checked for inventory, estimated and brought back for improvement.”

Allen claims though these roads are a rural, they are due for necessary maintenance.

As of now, there is one road on the list that poses safety hazards for citizens that lies in McIntosh Co. This road is a dirt road that goes east to west off Salem Rd. to Hickory Ground ceremonial grounds.

“In a couple years this road will be a full reconstruction but we are just doing maintenance on it right now,” Edwards said. “Portions of the road are covered in water after every rain and it gets hard to get up and down the road.”

“We are just performing maintenance until we can get a design plan to make it an asphalt road.”

In the last year, the Federal Roads Program has developed a request for services form.

“If anybody has a request on their driveways or roads, we can send them a form, they can fill out the form requesting that we come out to look at the road and evaluate that to estimate the cost and it will go up the chain for approval.”

Citizens with requests can contact MCN Federal Roads Program at: 918-732-7915.

The legislation included TR 21-050, TR 21-052-056, and TR 21-058 and can be viewed at: www.mcnn.com.

CITIZEN WINS BIG AT SPELLING BEE

BEARDEN STUDENT PLACES SECOND AT DISTRICT SPELLING BEE

Morgan Taylor
REPORTER

MUSKOGEE, Oklahoma – Nikki Deere (Mvskoke) placed second at this years’ Eastern Oklahoma State Spelling Bee held at the Muskogee Civic Center on April 23.

Deere is the daughter of Rob and Danielle Deere of Okemah.

Deere just finished her seventh grade year at Bearden and will be entering the eighth grade this fall.

Once a year, Bearden holds a spelling bee for the students to compete and Deere was this year’s champion qualifying her for the Eastern Oklahoma State Spelling Bee Event.

“I have been the champion every year since third grade,” Deere said proudly. “I have attended the Eastern Oklahoma State Spelling Bee every year too.”

This is Deere’s first year to take home an award for the spelling portion of the event but in previous years she won an award for an art contest where she drew a bee holding Oklahoma to represent the event.

According to Deere, it took a few hours to get down to the last few contestants. Out of 148 contestants, Deere made it down to the last two.

“There was a lot of competition there,” Deere said. “Once we got down to three of us, it took a long time.”

After the elimination of the third person, Deere’s mother Danielle Deere said it was a young boy from Grandview

Public Schools who battled with Nikki.

“They went back and forth a couple times,” Danielle said. “He would miss, she would miss and they did that a few different times.”

Danielle claims that Nikki would dedicate time each evening to practicing spelling words to prepare for the competition.

“A state spelling bee word list was sent out for practicing and studying,” Danielle said. “One of her biggest study habits this year was just making sure she knew how to pronounce each word so she could spell it.”

“She’s just been given that gift where if she hears it then looks at it, she’s been successful in spelling it,” Danielle claims.

Deere’s prize of a $500 check will go to the school with the plan to buy new dictionaries and atlases for the classroom use along with a personal prize of $250.

“I put my money up in my savings,” Deere exclaimed. “I hope to win next year!”
