MCN RESPONDS TO NATURAL DISASTERS

PRINCIPAL CHIEF DECLARES STATE OF EMERGENCY FOR MVSKOKE RESERVATION

by LIZ GRAY

MANAGING EDITOR

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma -Storms wrung out a massive amount of rainfall on the evening of May 4 which resulted in flooding that affected several parts of the Myskoke Reservation, including the tribal nation's capital of Okmulgee.

On the morning of May 5, Principal Chief David Hill signed Executive Order 22-01 declaring a State of Emergency as part of the tribal hazard mitigation plan so that the Nation could maximize recovery and restoration with federal FEMA funding for disasters.

At MCN headquarters, the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Lighthorse Police Department, Office of Child Care, Human Services and Mvskoke Media buildings took on water.

"We did have a good response in having a better plan than we did a year ago," MCN Press Secretary Jason Salsman said. "Because unfortunately this happened last year."

The area is a known floodplain for the tribal complex.

MCN Emergency Management's Bobby Howard had been briefing tribal leadership throughout the week of chances for severe weather. By Wednesday afternoon, Howard started tracking storms which led to the department, first responders and LHPD deploying to edges of the Mvskoke Reservation.

As impacts have occurred, MCN responders have provided water rescues by boats, by officers with coordination with Choctaw, Cherokee and Osage Nations along with other tribal emergency managers.

The area of Seminole was hit by a tornado, where Howard said his department along with LHPD officers have worked with Seminole Nation and Seminole County to provide assistance.

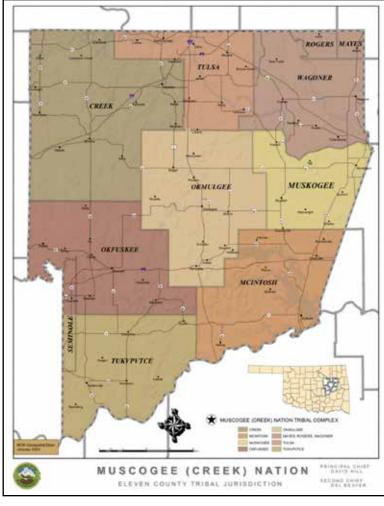

Water was moved to Cromwell to support the lack of water due to power outages within Seminole County as well as a water buffalo made available at one of the Muscogee (Creek) baptist churches in Okemah.

"We have a plan, it's worked very well during this event and continues to keep the Nation moving forward," Howard said.

Last year, MCN National Council amended legislation for the Natural Disaster Assistance Program through MCN Social Services for Muscogee (Creek) citizens affected by natural disasters, which includes floods.

Assistance includes replacement of necessity items such as clothing, personal hygiene, groceries, furniture, and/or emergency shelter and utility costs. Assistance is up to $7,500 per fiscal year.

MCN EMPLOYEE AND CITIZEN WINS CASE IN FIGHTING FOR TAX EXEMPTION

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma -Administrative Law Judge Ernest H. Short conceded Alicia Stroble's appeal agreeing that the state was wrong in denying her claim of the Tribal Income Exemption for the tax years of 2017, 2018 and 2019.

Short's decision is a recommendation to the Oklahoma Tax Commission to grant Stroble the exemption which the Commission in turn must chose to adopt Native American law attorney Kirke Kickingbird told The Oklahoman the case is likely to be headed to the Oklahoma Supreme Court.

"We are a long way from any kind of final result on this," Kickingbird said.

The state law that allows tribal members to be exempt from income taxes has been in place for nearly two decades.

An individual must have all three basic standards to be considered for the exemption: member of a federally recognized tribe, reside in tribes' boundaries and earn income derived from the sources within the residing jurisdiction.

As a Muscogee citizen living within the Muscogee Nation reservation who works for the Muscogee Nation, Stroble met all requirements necessary to be granted the exemption as defined

MCN GIVES STATEMENT ON SCOTUS OKLAHOMA V. CASTRO-HUERTA

ORAL ARGUMENTS WERE HELD APRIL 27

by LIZ GRAY

WASHINGTON - Oral arguments were held April 27 at the United States Supreme Court for Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta. Victor Castro-Huerta is a non-Indian who was tried in the state court upon which he received a state conviction of child neglect and a 35-year prison sentence. The crimes committed were against a minor enrolled in a federally-recognized tribe inside of the Cherokee Nation Reserva-

"Today's arguments at the U.S. Supreme Court shed light on the misleading arguments and gross exaggerations in the State of Oklahoma's case to expand its jurisdiction. It is long past time for the State to focus on reality and cease the costly, distracting litigation that rides on these fictions.

The State is overdue to begin working in earnest - as do other entities - with us and other sovereign tribal nations to protect public safety and ensure justice is served for all.

We are hopeful that the U.S. Supreme Court will continue steadfast in its Constitutional role to interpret the law, not legislate. And, we look forward to working with Congress to align public-safety funding to reflect the redistribution of caseloads away from the State to federal and tribal governments - as we continue to make our own significant investments in capacity and resources."

SCOTUS heard arguments from the state of Oklahoma and tribal nations residing within the state on whether the state can prosecute non-Indians for crimes involving Indians in Indian Country.

Oklahoma Attorney General also released a statement following oral arguments:

"Today, the State of Oklahoma asked the U.S. Supreme Court to confirm that the State has the authority to prosecute non-Indians who commit crimes against Indians in eastern Oklahoma, which is now the expanded Indian country under the McGirt decision. The State has been prosecuting such criminals since 1907.

Right now, we have two sets of rules when Indians are victimized, those that apply when perpetrator is non-Indian and a different set of rules when the perpetrator is Indian. On the ground in eastern Oklahoma, we have victims without justice and crimes without punish-

The federal government is leaving thousands of tribal victims of crime in eastern Oklahoma without justice, and as many criminals unprosecuted and free to victimize others around the State. This has dramatically damaged public safety in eastern Oklahoma.

Clearly, a win for Oklahoma in this case is a win for these Native American victims.

No matter the outcome, I will continue to reach out to the leaders of the Indian nations to engage in constructive conversations seeking resolutions that will benefit all Oklahomans.

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma -The College of the Muscogee Nation held its 13th annual graduation ceremony last month, graduating 30 students within the various degree programs at the Mvskoke Dome on April 22.

Dean of Academic Affairs Mekko Tyner wanted to thank the CMN graduation committee, Mvskoke Dome staff, Chief David Hill, Second Chief Dell Beaver, and the MCN National Council.

"For all their help and support for a successful graduation," Tyner said.

Miss Muscogee Nation Claudia McHenry earned her certificate in the Mvskoke Language and gave the invocation for the special ceremony.

Tyner wanted to recognize graduate Aaron Wesley who served as the CMN Honor Society Phi Theta Kappa President, Vice-President of the Tribal Leader Circle and Vice-President of the Student Senate.

Citizens and community members gathered on April 22 to dispose of various recyclable items and learn about responsible recycling habits. The event was hosted by Muscogee (Creek) Nation Environmental Services.

The annual spring and fall event provide an opportunity to recycle large items as well as shred information sensitive paper documents. Large recyclable items accepted included television monitors, washers/dryers, stoves, refrigerators, and car batteries. Traditional recyclables including paper, plastic and aluminum were also accepted.

Environmental Services director James Williams says the event has grown over the past decade with accessibility making it easy for anyone to participate.

The purpose of the event is important because it keeps unnecessary materials from ending up in landfills, and keeps the environment healthy. It also helps prevent illegal dumping; a problem found in rural Oklahoma communities according to Williams.

While these events give MCN Environmental Services a chance to engage with the public every spring and fall, they also offer conservation services year-round such as element quality testing, environmental reviews, and a free recycling center.

The recycling event preceded the Community Clean Up Event, also hosted by MCN Environmental Services. A follow up Earth Day event on April 29, will bring together a group of volunteers to pick up trash along predetermined routes and enjoy a cookout afterward.

MCN Environmental Specialist Kristy Lawson said she enjoys the people that attend MCN Earth Day events.

LACROSSE PLAYERS SPEAK AT COLLEGE OF THE MUSCOGEE (CREEK) NATION

THOMPSON BROTHERS PRESENT LACROSSE EQUIPMENT TO MCN STUDENTS

Muscogee students meet with professional lacrosse players at the College of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation. (Braden Harper/Reporter)

by BRADEN HARPER REPORTER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma - The Thompson brothers paid a visit to the College of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation and donated lacrosse equipment to MCN students April 25. The brothers came on the behalf of the 4 the Future Foundation, an organization dedicated to "engaging the benefits of an active and healthy lifestyle while promoting the attributes of the student-athlete and a call for generational leadership". The brothers spoke on their careers, performed a lacrosse demonstration and played with students afterward.

The charity strives to serve indigenous and underserved communities where lacrosse meets culture in order to create opportunities for students. Programs the charity offer include lacrosse camps/clinics, speaking engagements, health and wellness education, and fundraisers.

The Thompson brothers consist of Jeremy, Jerome, Miles and Lyle. They are of the Onondaga Nation, which is part of the Iroquois Confederacy. Growing up, lacrosse played an important role in the Thompson household.

"When we were younger, we grew up without running water or electricity until I was about 13 years old and there was one thing that kept our family together and that was lacrosse," Lyle said. "We were always out in the yard, playing, picking up our sticks, this is one thing we've always had in our hands".

The sport not only brought the Thompson family closer together, it provided the brothers opportunities to attend college and play on professional lacrosse teams.

While lacrosse is not a traditional sport played in the Muscogee (Creek) culture, it bears a lot of similarities to stick ball. The Onondaga Nation refers to lacrosse as the Medicine Game, due to its spiritual connection to the Creator.

"We're very blessed and honored to be here and share this game. I think there are a lot of opportunities here to cross bridges," Jeremy said.

Starting Indigenous students on cultural sports like lacrosse early is an important goal set by the 4 the Future Foundation. "If we can put a stick in a kid's hand, there's going to be a ripple effect to other kids,"

The College of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation was grateful for the opportunity to host the engagement. CMN President Monte Randall believes that the event served as a wonderful opportunity for student athletes to engage with professional players.

"Being recognized by people at that level, professional athletes, those who have that desire to serve these types of communities, I think that recognition is going to be very beneficial to our students, our campus and the Muscogee Creek Nation," Dr. Randall said.

After the speaking engagement was over, the brothers played lacrosse with students. The Thompson brothers are well aware of their image and the impact they have on young students.

"I feel honored to be that good example, set a good footprint for generations to come up, just to poetically listen to it, feel it, see it, that's good to hear when we get feedback like that. It's such a great feeling," Jeremy said.

MUSCOGEE ARTIST HELPS KICK OFF INAUGURAL MVSKOKE ART MARKET

RANDY KEMP DISPLAYS PERSONAL WORKS AND SERVES AS ART JUDGE

by BRADEN HARPER REPORTER

TULSA, Oklahoma - If you can name any medium of art, chances are Randy Kemp has produced a piece in that format. Kemp is a multidisciplinary artist, and has produced works in painting, printmaking, installation, music, film and performance. Some of those works were found on display at the inaugural Myskoke Art Market April 23 and 24.

Kemp lives in Phoenix, Arizona with his wife Beverly, his son Raven and his daughter Rykelle. His children are artists as well, and appeared in the Myskoke Art Market alongside their father.

Kemp is a Muscogee (Creek) Nation citizen, as well as a member of the Choctaw, and Euchee tribal nations. He resides as a Senior Environmental Graphic Designer at Arizona State University.

Originally from East Los Angeles, Kemp grew up in Bell Garden. Kemp discovered his passion for art at an early age.

"I attribute that to my brother, who would draw imagery on the back wall of our home, I would go in and do highlights and shading." Kemp said. "It was kind of like school tuition without the school tuition cost."

Although Kemp enjoyed drawing throughout his childhood, the thought of an art career did not cross his mind until high school. He would later go on to earn an Associate of Art degree from Bacone College and a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree from Arizona State Univer-

"I really enjoyed it because it gave me empowerment, it really helped me understand where I stood in society as an artist and the views that you take on and paint about," he said.

The tools available at Arizona State allowed Kemp to expand his talents in graphic design and computer arts, leading to a 30-year career as a commercial artist.

Although his talent can be viewed in many different mediums, Kemp's favorite to work in is acrylic paints due to its versatility and quickness.

He is also a musician, and can be found playing the flute in various art markets and festivals across

Like other artists working through the COVID-19 pandemic, Kemp has had to readapt his approach to exhibiting his works.

"We had to grow a new leaf," Kemp said. "That meant that we had to do a lot of online presentations, we had to fill a lot of shows online. Having to work with other artists was difficult, you have to do more on computers, programs, send in files back and forth. It was a different reality for sure".

Large events like the Myskoke Art Market have started to symbolize a turning point for Muscogee (Creek) artists looking to exhibit their works and fellowship with other artists.

"This really is an important show," Kemp said. "It's important for the Muscogee people and artists to be recognized as part of the show."

Not only did Kemp exhibit his art works at the event, he also served as an art competition judge. He said the Myskoke Art Market is significant because it allowed Muscogee citizens and artists to engage in an event that is on par with any other major Indigenous art market in the country.

When asked what his proudest achievement as an Indigenous artist is, he firmly replied it was raising his children. His son Raven currently studies art and technology at the Chicago Art Institute, and his daughter Rykelle is a metalsmith who makes jewelry for her small business. Kemp had the pleasure of presenting alongside his children at the Myskoke Art Market.

Kemp has also created works in the visual arts producing short films like "Metropolitan Reserva-

When asked about his thoughts on Indigenous media today, Kemp said with the making of Reservation Dogs it's a good indicator that "we're going in the right direction".

The show was significant to him because it presented opportunities in theater and filmmaking for Indigenous artists that were not available when he was younger.

Kemp's talents have provided him with opportunities to serve in Native American art markets across the country including New Mexico, California, Oklahoma and

TRIBAL COURT SYSTEM EVOLVING

MCN COURTS WILL APPLY THE SUPPLEMENTAL CRIMES ACT IN CERTAIN CASES

by MORGAN TAYLOR

MULTIMEDIA PRODUCER

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma -The Muscogee (Creek) Nation National Council adopted the Supplemental Crimes Act to supplement the MCN Criminal Offenses Code of Laws listed in Title 14 of MCN Code for future cases tried in the tribe's court due to McGirt.

The decision of the Supreme Court in 2020 reaffirmed the Muscogee Reservation status and the tribal justice system has since been evolving.

With affirmation came quick and haste responsibility from the Nation including immediate expansion of law enforcement, going into agreements with local, state and federal municipalities, prosecution in the courts, and the need to consider the scope of criminal law.

According to the bill, NCA 22-048, the MCN Code has not undergone significant revision since 2010.

Furthermore, the bill states that the existing MCN laws are inadequate to address all acts of criminal misconduct that are occurring under the jurisdiction of the Nation.

The Act was originally introduced as bill NCA 20-040, the Assimilation Crimes Act but was redrafted as the Supplemental Crimes Act (NCA 20-048) to eliminate using language that could trigger trauma.

During an April 5 Emergency Session, MCN National Council General Counsel Kyle Haskins said it was an odd name for a piece of legislation that was made

According to Haskins, this was done at the request of the MCN Attorney General's Office to help expand prosecutorial du-

Laws are being drafted and created by Haskins along with a small team and approval from the MCN National Council. These laws are being adopted and added to MCN Code slowly, but can be a long process.

"Some day we will have the staff to be able to revisit our laws," Haskins said. "But right now, we don't have anybody dedicated to that and it would take multiple people."

Haskins explained the Act as a temporary solution; he said this would allow prosecutors to move forward with cases while laws are still in creation phases and would help by setting precedence in the courts.

"Since McGirt we have had a number of cases that have been referred to us by state agencies

MCN will use laws in place by other entities to prosecute when necessary. (Morgan Taylor/ Multimedia Producer) and we could not prosecute those crimes," he said.

Due to the lack of judicial precedence in tribal courts for certain crimes, the stockpile of stagnant cases awaiting prosecution from the MCN needs assistance by using the state and local municipalities preceding law.

"It does not violate any sovereignty issues," Haskins said.

The legislation states that MCN law would remain the primary prosecuting agency for each case.

NCA 20-048 was adopted by the National Council during the April 12 Emergency Session with full support.

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma -According to Principal Chief David Hill, the Muscogee Nation Festival is projected to attract around 40,000 visitors during the last weekend of June after a twoyear hiatus due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Logan was able to talk about the Festival on an April 5 Mvskoke Live Wire, then gave another update on an episode of Mvskoke Radio on April 27.

Unfortunately, Logan could not yet give an update on entertainment but they hope to announce that mid-May.

Logan and his department want to make this years festival the biggest yet.

"When we get to June 23, it will be three years since we had our last festival," Logan said.

People can expect to see changes in the Festival's agenda and operations, which are results of COVID, according to Logan.

The most significant change might be the loss of loved ones over the course of the pandemic.

"We are trying to find ways to not only honor those folks but to unite us," he said.

Those who have attended before might remember the social stomp dance that takes place the Thursday evening before the festival weekend that has been led by Mekko David Proctor.

To keep in the good graces of the entertainment world, Logan does not release any names until mid-May per contractual agree-

This comes after the U.S Supreme Court McGirt ruling that MCN reservation lands through various treaties were never disestablished and are still classified as Indian Country lands for the Nation under federal law.

A tribal resolution will be submitted to the National Council for approval when the Attorney General's Office seeks to retain legal services to assist with the filing of the federal lawsuit.

OKMULGEE, Oklahoma -Muscogee (Creek) citizen and one half of rap duo T H R O N E River Watson appeared on Mvskoke Media Live Wire to talk about the recent album release from the group and her ties to Mvskoke culture and LionFish is the name of the album and the first song, where Watson immediately displays her Mvskoke heritage by versing the first half of the song in the language.

Working with the MCN Language Department during a visit home, Watson translated a poem she had written that is in the song.

'I was in love with a sad song and it was strong, but it ended when we realized we're afraid of coming out of the dark.'

She said it is about the lifecycle a love story that wasn't meant to last but how to appreciate the life it gave.

The music that T H R O N E produces is within a very new genre she and her partner Taylor have coined as renaissance hip-hop.

It started with a small group of underground rappers that referred to themselves as low and wide renaissance rap making their own beats using old soul music and jazz records.

"You chop a sample and create your own song out of it then you rap on top of it," Watson said.

She explained that there is a more personal, soulful feel to this style of rap compared to what might be heard on the radio or what one

River Watson and partner Taylor make up the rap duo T H R O N E. (River Watson)

"We're going for something that can be a bit more classical for the sound," she said.

Lyrically, the composition of the music is more abstract and artistic according to Watson.

Reflection is a word Watson reiterates in her description.

"We want to relate more to something than just entertainment."

Watson said T H R O N E has already pre-recorded two albums that are in the long awaited mixing

It was a couple years prior when she started doing small performances for the Nation for different reasons, mostly entertainment pur-
