OKMULGEE – The 2025 Muscogee (Creek) Nation General Election takes place on Saturday, Sept. 20. According to NCA 24-096:

There is a need to reestablish district voting to strengthen communications/correspondence and accessibility to build open relationships with National Council Representatives and provide more accountability and transparency of National Council Representatives with the district they are elected to represent. Citizens have been requesting an amendment to the constitution to return to district voting for National Council Representatives for several years.

PETITION FOR REHEARING FILED IN GRAYSON/KENNEDY CASE

MCN CITIZENSHIP BOARD CHALLENGES SUPREME COURT ORDER

BY JERRAD MOORE
ASSIGNMENT EDITOR

OKMULGEE – On Tuesday, Aug 4 a petition for rehearing was filed by the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Citizenship Board with the MCN Supreme Court. The petition states that the decision in the Grayson/Kennedy case violates MCN citizens' constitutional right to define citizenship. According to the petition:

Most significantly, the Opinion cancels a constitutional provision without the necessary legal showing that beyond a reasonable doubt that the provision is invalid. The Opinion's created crisis continues with its unauthorized radical, actual physical amendment of the Constitution, a clear usurpation of the People's exclusive political power. The Opinion continues its creation of the constitutional crisis by its unnecessary "void ab initio" language, calling into possible question post-Constitution governmental senior office holders and their actions. The Opinion unnecessarily further invalidates constitutional and statutory language not at issue before the Citizenship Board or the District Court. Finally, the crisis culminates in its mandate as to cases unknown and unfilled. Rehearing is required to recognize and apply that highest known legal standard applicable to challengers seeking to invalidate a consti-

SOLOMAN HILL SHOOT TO THE NATIONAL SENIOR GAMES

BY SHAYLN PROCTOR
REPORTER

DES MOINES, Iowa – Mvskoke citizen Soloman Hill headed to Iowa in July to compete at the 2025 National Senior Games Association (NSGA) in two basketball skills events. The national competition hosts elders from all over the United States and involves competitions in a number of sports events. Hill, at 65 years old, was the only MCN citizen in his age group that competed in the basketball skills events, competing in both the three-point and free-throwing competitions.

Hill started competing in 2016 after a double knee replacement. According to Hill, he pushes to play because it keeps him fit and active, and he likes the feel of competition.

Hill has competed in the MCN Elder Games, the Seminole Nation Senior Games, and Oklahoma Senior Games.

Hill decided he wanted to compete in the NSGA after attending this year's OSG in Yukon. Initially he hadn't thought about the national games, but with the help of his youngest daughter he later registered for the competitions.

Prior to the national games, Hill told Mvskoke Media he was looking forward to the competition. "I just want to see how I compete on a National level, next level. Because I think I'm the only one from Oklahoma in my age group competing up there and I think it's around 40 in the free-throw contest and about 35 in the three-point contest," Hill said.

Hill shared that he always tries his best in every competition, and he also enjoys meeting other people at the events. During the NSGA, Hill met a competitor from Chicago who asked about his race. "He asked me, 'Are you Indigenous?' and I said 'yes I'm Native American,' we talked for quite awhile," Hill shared. "Some of the restaurants we ate at, I could tell they never had seen a Native American there before."

Hill shared advice from a competitor he met at the OSG, who had also played at the World Senior Games. The 80 year old gave Hill some wisdom, "He said 'you're only as old as you feel.' He said 'just keep on practicing. That kind of keeps you fit,'" he said.

When practicing for these events, Hill shoots baskets every day. He has both 9-foot and 11-foot basketball goals; he alternates between them. Hill also practices at nearby Gypsy Public School on their regulation size 10-foot goal.

"I practice on a different level of heights so I can kind of get the feel of different heights on the basketball goal," Hill said.

For the NSGA basketball skills event, competitors in the three-point shot contest are allowed 15 shots. Competitors in the free-throw contest are allowed 25 shots. The competitor who makes the most shots wins the game.

Hill shared he has made 26 free-throws in a row before. For the competition, his nerves took over until he found his rhythm shooting- he made 19 baskets. While he didn't place in the top three, he said that he had a ton of fun and thinks it's something to cross off his bucket list.

While Hill won't be competing anymore this year, he did share what he would need to do to prepare. "If I can, I have to practice more and get a routine. You have to have a routine, to always shoot consistently," Hill said.

What he enjoys most is seeing how far he can go, especially in the competition level. "It was an honor to even compete within that type of level and I liked it a lot," Hill said.

tutional provision, remedy the Opinion's result of the failure to follow such a standard and by so doing, then avert a constitutional crisis.

The time for action to protect the Constitution is now. The Citizenship Board has demonstrated this Court's violation of the People's constitutional right to define citizenship. The law states the burden that must be met to take away that constitutional right. The Court did not identify, much less meet that burden. Now, this Court has the opportunity to (a) grant rehearing, (b) vacate the Opinion, (c) reverse the District Court, and (d) uphold the Citizenship Board's application of the Constitution.

Prior to the filing, Mvskoke Media reached out to the MCN Citizenship Board on July 29, asking if Grayson or Kennedy had been granted citizenship in accordance with the order. We received no response.

Mvskoke Media also contacted the MCN Election Board on the same day to clarify whether Grayson or Kennedy will be allowed to register to vote, in the event they are granted citizenship before the September 9 deadline. MCN Election Board Manager Nelson Harjo responded, "The Election Board and Office will follow what the law requires."

Mvskoke Media will have ongoing coverage of this developing story.

NATIVE FORWARD SCHOLARS FUND PROVIDES COLLEGE OPPORTUNITIES

THE NONPROFIT SCHOLARSHIP CONTINUES TO PROVIDE OPPORTUNITIES TO NATIVE AMERICAN COLLEGE STUDENTS AMIDST RISING TUITION PRICES

BY BRADEN HARPER
MANAGING EDITOR

ALBUQUERQUE – For over 50 years the Native Forward Scholars Fund has provided scholarship opportunities to Native American students from over 500 Tribes in 50 states. Those 500 Tribes include college students from the Muscogee (Creek) Nation. Two Mvskoke doctorate scholar recipients of the scholarships include College of Muscogee Nation (CMN) Dr. Monte Randall and Native Forward Scholars Fund Associate Director of Student Programming Dr. Sara Barnett.

Chief Operating Officer Dr. Sandra Boham has worked for the nonprofit for several years and is a citizen of the Confederated Salish & Kootenai Tribes. She previously served as the president of Salish Kootenai College (SKC) in Pablo, Montana. According to Dr. Boham, what makes Native Forward different from other scholarship nonprofits is the students they serve and the opportunities they provide for students to pursue graduate degrees.

"We provide scholarships at the bachelor's level, the master's level and the doctorate level," Dr. Boham said. "Finding graduate scholarships is very difficult. That's a need that we have in our communities as we're building people to run our tribal nations."

Native Forward offers scholarships that cover the cost of professional licensure tests such as Certified Public Accountant exams. They also cover costs for admissions tests such as the Law School Admission Test or Medical College Admission Test. The nonprofit even provides scholarships for medical school. According to Dr. Boham, funding for medical school is in short supply and hard to find.

Students seeking services through Native Forward will also find wraparound services. According to Dr. Boham, most scholarship foundations will award students scholarship money and walk away. In addition to providing scholarship money, Native Forward also provides webinars,

"I LOVE THE MISSION AND IT STILL ALLOWS THE OPPORTUNITY TO WORK TO HELP NATIVE STUDENTS ACHIEVE THEIR ACADEMIC GOALS."
- CHIEF OPERATING OFFICER DR. SANDRA BOHAM

resume workshops and professional headshots.

"We have high-touch contact with our students," Dr. Boham said. "We want them to succeed and we want to provide professional development and coaching and emergency support services."

Dr. Boham elaborated that emergency support services entails any necessities students might need such as money for groceries. The goal is to make sure that students do not face difficult choices between education and basic necessities.

From American Indian Graduate Center to Native Forward

Dr. Boham was once a graduate student herself. During her time as a student, resources like Native Forward were not available for Native American college students. Established in the 1970s, Native Forward was called the American Indian Graduate Center. It was rebranded to Native Forward in order to reflect the greater variety of resources for Native American undergraduate and graduate students they currently provide. According to Dr. Boham, Native Forward has seen tremendous growth in Native American student enrollment numbers over its 55-year history.

"In the '70s we did not have a lot of the resources that exist today. There weren't a lot of Indian students that were going to college," Dr. Boham said. "Typically what would happen is students would go to college, not have the resources and not have the knowledge on how to navigate the school itself through all its bureaucracy. So we would have students return to the reservation without completing their education."

This would lead to the creation of tribal colleges, like CMN or SKC. Dr. Boham noted that as college students became more successful in Tribal institutions, they also became successful in mainstream institutions as well. This was due to students understanding how to apply, navigate enrollment, and receive financial aid.

Although more Native American students are found in the classroom today, they still face challenges. Many are first generation college students. According to Dr. Boham, implementing Native American students into curriculum, research, and classroom discussions is still a work in progress.

Among the thousands of recipients of Native Forward, Dr. Boham estimates that it has seen 20 Mvskoke students over the past two years.

Is it Worth Going to College in 2025?

Many goods and services have been affected by growing inflation since the beginning of the Covid-19 Pandemic. Higher education has been affected as well. According to the Education Data Initiative, the average cost of college tuition and fees at a public four-year institution has risen 141% over the last 20 years for an annual average increase of 7%. These rising costs have come into question whether higher education is worth the time and financial investment.

Despite the rising costs of a college education, Dr. Boham is a strong proponent of higher education and believes that everyone should pursue training beyond high school, whether it be a traditional four year institution, a trade school, or the military.

"When you look at the rooms where that discussion (whether college is worth pursuing), is being held, most of the people in that room have their college education, but they're telling everybody else 'it's not worth it'" Dr. Boham said. "That has always frustrated me because who that impacts the most are the people that are on the lower socio-economic level. Those are the people who can benefit the most."

Dr. Boham's advice for navigating the rising costs of college tuition is to take advantage of every scholarship and internship available, even if the student does not believe they are qualified for that particular opportunity.

"Don't eliminate yourself," Dr. Boham said. "Apply and let the scholarship (committee) decide whether you're eligible or not."

Native Forward's scholarship process involves a single application with 30 different types of scholarships available. Applicants apply once, then if they are accepted, they are matched with all the different funding they are eligible to receive. Applicants are expected to have strong references, meet application deadlines and do their best in submitting original work that does not involve the use of artificial intelligence.

ANNUAL SUMMIT PREPARES YOUTH FOR THE FUTURE

THE MUSCOGEE (CREEK) NATION CENTER FOR VICTIM SERVICES HOSTED THE SECOND ANNUAL YOUTH SUMMIT WITH SPEAKERS AND RESOURCES ON HIGHER EDUCATION, MENTAL HEALTH AND FINANCIAL LITERACY

BY BRADEN HARPER

GLENPOOL – Mvskoke Summer Youth employees packed the Glenpool Conference Center on July 16 for the Second Annual Youth Summit. The event was hosted by Muscogee (Creek) Nation Center for Victim Services in collaboration with the Summer Youth Employment Program (SYEP). The summit included main speakers, breakout sessions and a resource fair with various Tribal departments, local colleges, and military branches.

Higher education, mental health, financial literacy, and cultural education were discussed, as well as uncomfortable topics like suicide prevention, sexual health and dating violence.

Summer youth employees heard lectures from eight different speakers. Ponca City Victim advocate Kelsey Griffith was the keynote speaker. Griffith infused her presentation with audience interaction, creating a comfortable atmosphere to learn about hard topics like domestic violence and sexual assault.

The Youth Summit is spearheaded by CVS Youth Prevention Specialist Jamie Rolland-Hill (Euchee/Mvskoke), who got the idea from a conference she attended at Kaw Nation. Rolland-Hill dedicated a lot of time organizing the event and bringing together crime advocates and mental health professionals for the benefit of the summer youth employees.

“When I get to go into the schools and I get to talk to these high school kids, the things they say to me sometimes shock me,” Rolland-Hill said. “Toxic behavior is so normal to them and they don’t realize they don’t have to tolerate that. They can say ‘no’. They don’t have to let people peer pressure them. That’s a big thing these days is peer pressure.”

Cultural education and demonstrations were also provided for students to learn more about Mvskoke culture. Clay pottery, and corn husk doll making were included in the demonstrations as well as education on their cultural significance. The Mvskoke Language Program taught three sessions on the importance of preserving the language.

Rolland and her department pulled out all the stops for the summer youth employees that attended. Each summer youth employee received an Oakley backpack, a wireless portable phone charger, t-shirts and snow cones. Chick-Fil-A was catered for lunch, and come-and-go pop and snacks were provided by Mvskoke Youth Services.

CVS Director Shawn Partridge (Mvskoke) believes this is one of the largest events organized by the tribe for Mvskoke youth. The goal of discussing these topics was to prepare young adults within the tribe for life after graduating high school and college. According to Partridge, the younger the individuals are when they’re exposed to the issues and resources discussed at the summit, the more likely they will know who to contact if they ever experience it themselves.

“The focus from our program is for them to learn about relationships and abusive behaviors, those red flags to look for in relationships,” Partridge said. “It comes at an important time for them being teenagers and having important discussions about important topics.”

Funding for the event was provided by the Family Violence Prevention Services Grant. To stay up-to-date on CVS events, visit their Facebook page, Muscogee (Creek) Nation Center for Victim Services. The office can also be reached at 918-732-7979 to report domestic violence cases.

ADULT PROTECTIVE SERVICES ASSIST THE VULNERABLE

MVSKOKE ADULTS AND ELDERS CAN GET NEEDED ASSISTANCE

BY SHAYLN PROCTOR
REPORTER

OKMULGEE – Neglect and abuse can manifest in many different ways: it can be verbal, physical, intentional, negligent, and exploitative. When this happens to vulnerable Mvskoke citizens, the Muscogee (Creek) Nation Adult Protective Services can investigate and provide needed assistance.

To be eligible for MCN APS services the adult must be a MCN citizen, 18 years or older (vulnerable or incapacitated), reside within MCN jurisdiction boundaries and must meet program criteria of abuse, neglect, and exploitation of a vulnerable or incapacitated adult/elder.

MCN Manager of APS and Ombudsman Program Tammy McFalls (Mvskoke) spoke to Mvskoke Media about APS, the signs, process of reporting, and what APS can do for citizens in need.

Forms of abuse and neglect

APS can step in when elders and incapacitated adults experience physical abuse- the intentional or negligent infliction of bodily harm. APS can also step in when there is suspected neglect or self-neglect. Neglect happens when a caretaker fails to provide the basic needs by not supplying resources, services or supervision. Self-neglect is a behavioral condition where an individual neglects to attend to their basic daily needs; they might be medical, nutrition, hygiene and appropriate clothing. Exploitation is another form of abuse where APS can help. Exploitation involves the unauthorized and/or improper use of funds, property, or other resources of an elder or incapacitated adult.

According to McFalls, other factors are considered when APS looks into each individual case.

Reporting to APS

To report suspected signs of abuse and neglect, the first step is to contact APS via phone, email, or in-person. When someone calls to report, APS will take information about the individual and determine if it meets criteria for involvement, and it will be assigned to a case specialist, who will then make contact within 3 days. From there, the investigation will begin, with risk factors and informed consent taken into account. APS keeps reporters confidential and they also do not share details about cases.

McFalls also explained that given the circumstance an emergency pick-up is possible and shouldn’t take that long depend-on circumstance, also if AG is allowing us to do an emergency pick up,” McFalls said.

McFalls stressed that it is up to the individual to make decisions.

“Other than that, if they don’t have the capacity and we find that they can’t take care of themselves and that person that was taking care of them wasn’t doing what they should be doing then we probably would place them in a facility at their will, but if we haven’t found fault to take them into custody,” McFalls said.

MCN Ombudsman Program

APS and the MCN Ombudsman Program are two different programs. “Ombudsman, they go out to a nursing home where our Creek citizens are located, they will advocate for the citizens that’s ing on the case.

According to McFall, if an individual is capable of living independently away from an abusive caregiver, APS will work on getting service within their home. They will also work on placing the individual in a care home voluntarily.

“We don’t remove, we can’t make a person do anything, and especially if they have the capacity. We don’t have those rights at all. The only way we can remove a person from the home, depends in the facility, they are their voice, but they have restrictions of what they can or cannot do,” McFalls said.

APS also collaborates with OK DHS, who will notify MCN APS of enrolled Mvskoke citizens needing assistance.

You can contact the APS direct line at 918-549-2489 or through fax at 918-549-2980. To reach McFall’s mobile work phone, call 539-286-4033 and her email is tmcfalls@muscogenation.com

MUSCOGEE ARTIST PAINTS REALITY OF THE MUSCOGEE PEOPLE

Diacon holding three small paintings of bigfoot, a deer, and a medicine man. He only paints on small canvases so that his community and other people can afford to buy his artwork as most of his artwork is large scale and expensive. (Elena Andra Stoica/UNT)

The following article is an original work, written and produced by student reporters from the Mayborn School of Journalism at the University of North Texas. In March 2025, Mvskoke Media hosted nine students for a site specific, field reporting program with a focus on the history, culture, and people of the Mvskoke Nation. Their week-long efforts on the reservation culminated in written and visual projects, the full scope of which can be found at the project’s website Muscogeevoices.com.

TULSA — As a young boy Johnnie Diacon constantly was drawing and reading. But as soon as he would look up at the board or try to watch TV, something seemed different because it all became a blur. It was only until he reached fourth grade during a vision screening at his school, which he flunked, that his teachers were able to catch on to what his parents missed – Diacon needed glasses.

Two or three weeks later when he put on the glasses, Diacon’s whole world changed. After reading the chart perfectly, he laid eyes on the office walls, which were covered in old flat style Native American paintings, and he instantly fell in love with them.

“I would go home and take dad’s paints and try to replicate what I saw,” the Muscogee artist said. “This is pre-internet, so I couldn’t Google it, and I couldn’t look it up or anything. There was no way to find out. So, every year, I was always anxious to go back to the eye doctor so I could see his paintings.”

Now 62, Diacon, who is an enrolled member of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation, has cemented himself as an award-winning artist and one of the few who is in tune with depicting his heritage and people. Based in Tulsa, his art studio has made its own nest in his garage.

Normally, one would expect to find cars in a garage; however, for Diacon, his garage is a sanctuary to his world of art and creativity where time does not exist, and his commissioned paintings do not follow anyone’s deadline. Whether a week passes, and he does not pick up a brush, to a sudden burst of creativity to paint at 5 a.m., Diacon follows his own creative timeline.

At the entrance to the garage, a precise labyrinth navigates around tables filled with paints, brushes, and boxes with artwork prints. An upholstered armchair is covered in a vibrant, colorful blanket with traditional Indian designs and symbols. A couch is filled with huge stacks of paintings. Plastic containers and cardboard boxes hold more artwork and supplies that reach the top of the ceiling. One wrong move in this labyrinth, and you could risk a domino effect of disaster. A truly wonderful, organized chaos.

His studio is less a workspace than a living archive, walls layered with framed photographs, colorful tribal patterns, and vintage memorabilia. A half-finished canvas rests on the easel beside him, with deep gradients of midnight purple -- a scene not yet fully painted. Diacon is working on a Trail of Tears painting for the Alabama Native American museum.

Breaking Stereotypes

Growing up, Diacon was surrounded by stereotypes of Native Americans created by Western movie depictions, which show that all Native Americans were Plains Indians living in teepees and riding on horseback. Throughout his life, Diacon had always painted the world he lived in and the world he was part of, and in a way, it became the true representation of what Muscogee peoples’ daily life looks like. Without aiming to break stereotypes, Diacon inadvertently achieved that.

“We are now in charge of how we depict ourselves, how we let the world see who we are, and so that’s kind of an important place to be. It’s important, quite a responsibility” Diacon said.

He added this is why it is so important to do his work honestly and accurately, because he believes it is not about him, but his people.

“It’s about who I’m representing, and I want them to be seen, and I want them to be seen as who we really are, and so people who don’t know, will get to know us,” the artist said.

To combat stereotypes, a collective effort was required from Native Artists, where they had to slowly stop recreating stereotypical artwork, which is popular among non-native Americans, who bought the art which a preconceived idea of what the art ‘should look like.’

Diacon adds that another layer of protection was the Indian Arts and Crafts Act of 1990, which according to the U.S. Department of the Interior makes it “illegal to offer or display for sale, or sell, any art of craft product in a manner that falsely suggests it is Indian produced, an Indian product, or the product of a particular Indian or Indian tribe or Indian arts and crafts organization, resident within the United States.” This law helps preserve representation of Native Americans only to those who are enrolled as part of a tribe, and it protects artists’ work in spaces that are dedicated specifically for Indian artwork.

Diacon said that when he began creating art in the early 1980s, that law didn’t exist, and you didn’t have to prove that you’re enrolled.

“When I first started, I wasn’t enrolled with the Muscogee Nation. I was Muscogee, but I was just an Indian.” Diacon only applied to enroll as a citizen once he decided to go to college at age 25 and was told he would qualify for scholarships and grants if he was an enrolled Native citizen.

The Trail of Tears is the name of the forced displacement journey of Native American people that took place in the 1830s under extremely harsh conditions, in which approximately 3,500 of the 20,000 Muscogee Nation tribe members did not survive. Diacon describes it as a “death march” and highlights that he does not agree with anyone that romanticizes the tragic and horrible occurrence.

“I don’t like benefiting off my peoples’ suffering, so I do not feel right doing a bunch of Trail of Tears paintings and selling them,” he said.

The few exceptions where he does agree to produce these paintings is in rare occasions such as historical preservation.

Dr. Stacy Pratt, a writer and art collector, describes Diacon’s painting style as one that can capture the true essence of how Creek (Muscogee Nation) people live their daily lives.

“On the internet a lot of people say that they can hear this painting, I can feel this painting, and that is how I feel about Johnnie’s artwork because it is so specific to how we live our life as Creek people,” said Pratt.

Pratt shares that until the show “Reservation Dogs” came out, people did not know how Muscogee people lived and now more people are aware. But at the time when she was seeing Diacon’s paintings, she was thinking “Man you’re really showing all of our secrets, not sacred secrets, but just the secrets of our daily lives.”

That is mainly because a core segment of artwork created by Diacon is focused so minutely on Creek life. A person who is not Creek may think “that it is a cool painting, and they may like that painting, but if you’re Creek you’d think the same and notice the small details that are engrained in daily life,” Pratt said. This is precisely why Diacon’s artwork was selected to be featured in the show “Reservation Dogs,” because it is the type of artwork that not only depicts Muscogee people but also lives on Muscogee peoples’ walls in their homes.

cleared for travel by her doctor, they made the trip together. But over the weekend, she began experiencing pain. Though her doctor reassured them it was part of a normal pregnancy, things worsened on the drive back home. Once back in Tulsa, her pain became unbearable. By the time they reached the hospital, she was rushed to labor and delivery. She was in labor—had been all weekend—but didn’t know it. The baby, a girl, was born too premature to survive.

“She was only about 10 minutes, she was with us, and she was gone. And it broke my heart, because I thought it’s my fault. If I hadn’t taken us to that art market while she was pregnant, she’d still be here.”

The self-inflicted guilt was so overwhelming that he stopped painting entirely. That loss took the creative spirit out of him. He questioned everything, his art, his success, even his sense of self. He wondered if he was being punished, if perhaps he had grown too full of himself, too focused on achievements. Years passed.

In 2014, he received a message from IAIA inviting alumni to contribute artwork to celebrate the opening of a new campus building. But he had nothing to show because he hadn’t painted in years. He didn’t feel ready.

That changed during an event hosted by the Iowa Tribe’s eagle rehabilitation program. There, he saw two injured eagles that were unable to return to the wild, but they still looked majestic. As he looked into their eyes,

Painting Past the Pain

Diacon has faced challenging times and at one point did not paint for 14 years. At the time, he had just graduated from the Institute of American Indian Arts (IAIA), returning to college in his 30s after years away from school. Once he graduated, opportunities began to open up. Art shows and markets welcomed his work, including the Eiteljorg Museum’s Native art market in Indianapolis.

At the time, his wife was six months pregnant. After she was he felt an unspoken and spiritual message: “We’ve been hurt too, but we’re still eagles. We’re still doing what we’re meant to do—with the help of others who love us.”

That moment stayed with him. Creation, he realized, was the gift he had been given. He was still an artist, even if had been wounded, he still has the love and support from his loved ones. He knew it was time. Picking up the brush again felt natural and like he had never stopped. Since then, he has not put it down.

ELDERS FIGHT THE LONELINESS EPIDEMIC TOGETHER AT EXERCISE SUMMIT

IHS' WISDOM WARRIORS JUST MOVE IT! EVENT ENGAGES ELDERS IN COMMUNITY, EXERCISE, AND OTHER FUN ACTIVITIES

by BRADEN HARPER
MANAGING EDITOR

TULSA – Tribal elders from around the Tulsa community moved and mingled at the Wisdom Warriors: Just Move It! event hosted in collaboration by Indian Health Service (IHS) and the Indian Health Care Resource Center (IHCRC) on July 25 at Veteran's Park. This was the third annual Just Move It! Event and the first hosted in Tulsa. The event featured experts on geriatric psychiatry, diabetes, Alzheimer's disease, and domestic violence intervention. Physical activities included Tai Chi, chair yoga, and round dancing. Medicine bag making and flower planting were also offered.

Indian Health Care Resource Center CEO Carmelita Wamego Skeeter (Citizen Potawatomi Nation) believes these events are important to keep seniors active and engaged in the community. Skeeter made the point that staying active and agile prevents the risk of falling, diabetes, and obesity. She also spoke about loneliness- elders, like any other adult, can experience loneliness.

"I think that we are dealing with a lot of loneliness," Skeeter said. "When children and grandchildren that have moved away, they don't get to come back home very often. We would love for everyone here to participate in any type of activities that we have."

Elders around the summit

Laverne Stone (Shawnee/Delaware) lives on the Mvskoke Reservation. Stone retired in 2002 from Centralift, a production plant in Claremore. She was excited for the Wisdom Warriors event, as well as the fellowship and activities that came with it. As someone with physical limitations, the event was a great way for her to get out of the house.

"I love meeting new people. We're going to be doing some exercises. I do exercise at home because I had a knee replacement," Stone said. "A lot of the elders have disabilities or have gone through surgeries like I have. This is a really good way to acknowledge them and give them good information. I don't have internet, we rely on things like this to help us."

Elders like Stone rely on the intertribal healthcare services provided by tribal health clinics and the IHCRC. The MCN Koweta Indian Health Clinic is a one-stop shop for Stone, providing primary and dental care as well as pharmacy services.

Janice Edmiston (Choctaw/Sac and Fox) said the Wisdom Warriors event was not her first time attending an IHCRC event. Previously she attended events regarding heart health and has volunteered with youth programs. Edmiston's favorite part about being socially active is seeing fellow IHCRC program members around the Tulsa community.

"You will see them at a pow wow or maybe you'll see them at a run, Indian Health Care may not have organized the run, but participants are there that are part of the running group," Edmiston said. "In terms of Indian Health Care what I have enjoyed the most is the medicine wheel experience where people exchange ideas after reading part of a book. There's no right or wrong way how people interpret it, it's just an exchange of ideas. It helps build the interspirituality that a lot of us miss from an Indian point of view."

Edmiston retired from Oklahoma State University Medical Center where she served as the Foundation Director. She said she hoped to find "enthusiasm for life" at the Wisdom Warriors summit. In particular, Edmiston finds enthusiasm by being around fellow elders and engaging in activities. Even if she can not do every activity other elders can like running, she remarked that she enjoys participating by walking or keeping pace as much as she can.

For IHCRC Elders Council Member Arglenda Jean Friday (Msvkoke), events like these are part of her normal routine. Friday and fellow members attend events like medicine bingo, dinners, and Tea and Topics, a monthly get together that discusses health topics. While Friday is satisfied with the programming designed for elders, she wishes to see more age diversity in future events.

"Hopefully we can do more for intergenerational activities," Friday said. "I've been to a number of workshops. We're losing the younger generation, they're being more influenced by social media. I'm not saying they're losing their ties with the cultural traditions and practices, but it is a concern I have."

"ANYTHING WE CAN DO TO KEEP THEM (ELDERS) FROM FALLING AND KEEP THEM HEALTHY AND MOVING, THAT WILL HELP WITH DIABETES, OBESITY AND OTHER HEALTH ISSUES." - CARMELITA WAMEGO SKEETER

Since her retirement Friday has kept busy volunteering at various organizations and learning as much as she can in order to serve her community. Originally born and raised in Tulsa, Friday has lived in California, Florida, Kansas, Texas, and Washington D.C. Friday's advice for young people is to stay grounded in your community and venture out to see what is happening in the world.

Stone, Skeeter, and Edmiston agree that events where elders come together have health benefits. According to Edmiston, there is no activity too simple that is not beneficial to elder health. What is most important is simply engagement.

"You will lose all your capacities: mental, physical, emotional and spiritual if you don't use it," Edmiston said. "The thing about interacting with elders is we understand how important patience is and how

MCN ELDER SERVICES HOSTING ANNUAL GRANDPARENTS DAY EVENT

ENJOY BREAKFAST, CHAIR VOLLEYBALL, AND MORE AT THE MVSKOKE DOME

by SHAYLN PROCTOR
REPORTER

OKMULGEE – On September 3, Muscogee (Creek) Nation Elder Services will host a Grandparent's Day of chair volleyball at the Mvskoke Dome in Okmulgee. This day will be full of fun, fellowship, and door prizes. Breakfast will be served at 8 a.m. by MCN Elderly Nutrition, and the games will start at 9 a.m. This event is for elders that are 55 and older, and up to two guests each.

All players must pre-register by August 20; attendees are asked to pre-register as well.

Each team must have six players. MCN Elder Services can fill teams for those registered with fewer than 6. Three players must be 55 years or older and enrolled MCN citizens- roll number is required when pre-registering. The teams can be made up of men, women and children.

MCN Office Manager of Elder Services Angi Neumeyer (Mvskoke) spoke to Mvskoke Media about what will be happening throughout the day, their goals and what she enjoys most about hosting these activities for the elders.

In addition to breakfast and chair volleyball, this year the event features information booths with prizes. Presently, volunteers signed up are MCN Youth Services, MCN Elderly Nutrition, College of the Muscogee Nation Health and Wellness, and MCN Diabetes Program.

According to Neumeyer, the program decided to incorporate chair volleyball because many elders show an interest in the game. Every year the event features a different activity. Last year, with a turnout of 250 elders, the activity was yard and board games.

Neumeyers' main goal is celebrating MCN grandparents and giving them a day of fun. "It's just a way to let them gather together and they like to visit with each other. We like to get to know them better," Neumeyer said.

She enjoys being able to meet and see elders on any day. "They always have stories that they like to tell and you never know what they're going to tell you. But it's nice to have a face to the name. We get phone calls and talk to them a lot, but we don't always get to meet them," Neumeyer said.

To pre-register or for more information you can contact Angi Neumeyer at 918-732-7765

MCN CONSERVATION DISTRICT RUNS OUT OF TREE SEEDLINGS AS FIRST GIVEAWAY PROVES TO BE POPLAR

BY BRADEN HARPER
MANAGING EDITOR

OKMULGEE - "Pom eknv likat enkvpvketc of senherice-towvcv" (When you leave our ground, make it better) was the theme of the Muscogee Conservation District's first Tree Giveaway at the Claude Cox Omniplex on July 21. Free tree seedlings were given to Mvskoke citizens who could present their citizenship card and fill out an application. A grant from the River Network, a 501(c) charity, provided the funds for the trees. Initially slated to last from 10 a.m. - 2 p.m., the department ran out of trees before 11 a.m.

Many varieties could be picked up at the giveaway, however some were more popular than others. One of the first to run out were mulberry trees. Other varieties included sassafras, American plum, hickory and pecan. According to MCN Conservation District Conservationist Julie Norem (Mvskoke), the varieties were chosen because they can give back to the land by contributing wood, fruit or nuts.

Norem is a gardner who grows produce like cucumbers, tomatoes and plums. She enjoys canning- making salsa and jelly. It is her dream one day to grow an orchard on her property. Her trees of choice at the giveaway were the sassafras and American plum.

"I want to have plums to be able to make jelly and the sassafras for the medicinal purposes," Norem said. "Sassafras is an unusual tree, it has three stages of leaves. It's a good one to have on your property."

MCN Conservation District Administrative Assistant Lisa Hill (Mvskoke) led the organization of the giveaway. Hill got the idea for the theme from National Council Representative Galen Cloud. The meaning behind the message, "When you leave our ground, make it better," is to leave the environment in better shape than you found it. According to Hill, planting trees is important because they are a vital oxygen source.

"We use trees for a lot of things and I know we don't always put them back after we use them," Hill said. "They're good for our environment, for air, for animals. It's a good environmental thing to have trees planted to have fresh air."

Hill grows tomatoes and peppers in the Nation's hydroponic facilities and gives them away to elders. She believes feeding the people of your tribe is an important responsibility of being a sovereign nation.

"I know elders are on fixed incomes and I want to make sure that they have enough to eat, even if it's just tomatoes," Hill said. "They enjoy it, they use it and they appreciate it. I'm just trying to help people. Someone once told me 'we're not a sovereign nation if we can't feed our people'.

If adopted, this resolution allows for the transfer of certain pieces of property - the property known as the TAEO Property in this case - from MNGE to the Muscogee Nation for purposes of economic development.

TR 25-064 A tribal resolution of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation confirming the nomination of Matt DuMond to serve on the Mvskoke Loan Board passed with a vote of 4-0. Representative Nelson Harjo Sr. sponsored the legislation.

If adopted, this resolution will allow Matt DuMond to serve on the Board of the Mvskoke Loan Fund, with his term starting on the date of his confirmation and ending on July 26, 2028.

NCA 25-062 A law of the Muscogee (Creek) Nation repealing MCNCA Title 50, entitled "Lighthorse Police" and MCNCA Title 22, Chapter 9, entitled "Emergency Management Authority" and enacting a new MCNCA Title 50, entitled "Department of Public Safety" and amending MCNCA Title 16, Chapter 1, entitled, "Organization of the Executive Office of the Principal Chief" passed with a vote of 3-1. by the committee. The law was Rep. Barnett sponsored the legislation. Rep. Golden voted no.

If adopted, this law will reorganize services such as the Lighthorse Police and Emergency Management Authority under the control of the Department of Public Safety within the Executive Branch.

Rep. Barnett would express concern on the proposed change and remarks by the Attorney General's office that the National Council would have input on proposed Commissioners for the Department of Public Safety, stating that their input previously "has not been heeded, nor respected."

To view the full agenda, visit: mcnnc.com.

I just try to help feed people."

According to Hill, planting is an easy hobby to pick up. However, it is a hobby that requires patience and time. Hill said her mother and grandmother used to plant tomatoes as well and would sing to them because they believed it helped them grow.

The story of our food is important to both Hill and Norem.

"It's important for us to know where our food comes from and to carry on the legacy of our ancestors of being agricultural people," Norem said. "A lot of the younger generation does not know where their food comes from or know how hard our ancestors worked to produce the food they ate. I think it's important to teach that."

According to Norem, future giveaway events will depend on her department's ability to renew grant funding in the future. The department is in the process of purchasing more trees to be planted at ceremonial grounds and childcare centers on the reservation.

MCN Conservation District's next event will be the Small Ruminant and Horticulture Workshop at the Honey Springs Battlefield Visitor Center in Checotah on Aug. 2. The event will feature a horticulturalist lecturing on how to care for goats. For registration information, contact the department at 918-549-2609. Norem invites anyone with questions about gardening to contact her office.

Tarp Sings In The Rain

The following column is a fictionalized satirical story written in the genre of ‘Creek Dialect Writings’. The events and characters depicted are fictitious.

At the corner of the bustling intersection of 71st Street and Memorial Drive, standing out like a flamingo at a goth party, is a short, rotund man with the unmistakable build of someone more familiar with snacks than squats. His T-Rex arms, comically short, flap uselessly at his sides, unable to reach even halfway down his beer belly.

He’s clad in nothing but a fluorescent pink tutu that strains to hug his waist. Cars honk as their occupants point and loudly guffaw. His expression is a mix of humiliation, resignation, and regret for making that bet.

Me, Yahola, Fixico, and Hokte Emarthla stand nearby. We are hooping, hollering, and laughing derisively. A gentle rain begins to fall. Tarpalechee opens an umbrella.

“Ok, Tarp,” Fixico says. “It’s Singing in the Rain time. You’ve gotta do the Gene Kelly dance too! Come on now! You lost the bet. Start singing and dancing in the rain!”

How did Tarpalechee wind up in this embarrassing situation? What bet did he lose? To answer those questions we need to go back eight hours earlier.

It’s late morning at the Rez Bar & Grill. The Frybread Boys are gathered around a table playing poker. The boys throw down their bets as Fixico shuffles the cards. Fixico counts Tarpalechee’s money.

“Heylul! You don’t trust me?” Tarp asks.

“I trust you like I trust a politician,” Fixico replies. “Ever since you tried to sneak those Mexican pesos by me.”

“Those were rare and historic pesos,” Tarp protests.

“Yeah, right. The pesos said United Mexican States, not Mexico,” Fixico says. “Clearly fakes.”

“Heresci, vnhesvlike!” says Hokte Emarthla as she energetically enters the Rez Bar. Hokte is attired in Lululemon black yoga pants and matching spaghetti strap cami. Bright yellow Hoka running shoes complete her workout attire.

“Hey Hokte, ‘stonko?” Yahola says. “Good to see you. Come join us.”

“Sorry boys, can’t stay. Gotta get to my Pilates class.”

Me, Yahola, and Fixico exchange questioning glances. Yahola scratches his head.

“Heylul! You boys don’t know Pilates?” Hokte asks.

“Pilates?” Fixico says. “Isn’t he the ancient Roman philosopher?”

“That’s Socrates, Chief Moron,” I say as Yahola, and Hokte yuk it up.

“Actually, it’s exercise. It’s done on what’s called a Reformer,” Tarpalechee says. “It’s supposed to increase core strength, flexibility, and balance. Strictly for girls though.”

Hokte takes offense.

“No it’s not!” she says. “NFL and NBA teams use it for training. It’s a very rigorous workout.”

“Bullstitt!” Tarp replies. “It’s so easy I could do it in my sleep.”

“Wanna bet?”

“Yeah, I’ll betcha!”

“Don’t do it, Tarp,” I say.

“I’ll bet you a basket of frybread you can’t complete a workout.”

“Oooh! Hokte’s frybread is the best,” Fixico says.

“What should I make him bet, boys?” Hokte asks.

“I know!” Yahola says. “Make him stand on a busy street corner wearing only a pink tutu!”

“Yeah! And he has to croon the Singing in the Rain song,” I say.

“While doing the famous Gene Kelly dance with an umbrella,” Fixico says.

“What about it, Tarp?” Hokte asks.

“Don’t do it, Tarp!” I say but it is too late as Hokte and Tarpalechee shake hands.

The Pilates studio is nice and dimly lit with soft neon blue lighting. There are twelve Pilates reformers with six on each side of the room and an aisle running down the middle. The Reformers are sleek, bed-like apparatus with a carriage that slides up and down the frame. Two handles are attached to cables that are wired around pulleys and then attach underneath the carriage. When the handles are pulled it causes the carriage to slide back and forth. Tarp and Hokte sit on adjoining Reformers.

“Ok, class. We are going to start with arm work today. Lie down, put your feet parallel on the foot bar, and grab your straps,” the instructor says.

Tarp rolls over on his back, but his momentum causes him to fall off on the other side of the Reformer. Hokte guffaws. He tries again and slowly eases onto his back.

“First time?” the instructor asks.

“It is,” Hokte replies. “He thinks Pilates is just for girls.”

The female instructor gives Tarp a narrow-eyed stare.

“I feel that look,” Tarp whispers.

“Grab your straps, sir,” the instructor says.

Tarp reaches back and above his head trying to find the hand straps. However, his T-Rex are too short. Exhaling loudly, the instructor takes the straps off of a wooden dowel and places them in Tarp’s hands.

“Ok, class. Let’s start with your hands up in the air above your shoulders. Keeping your arms straight, you’re going to move your hands downward to your hips then return to the starting position. We’ll do fifteen of these. Let’s go!”

Tarp tries to move his hands to his hips but neither the cables nor the carriage moves. The women attendees are effortlessly moving their arms up and down as their carriages smoothly glide back and forth. His is the only carriage not moving. Tarp’s cheeks turn a bright red as he lies with his hands in the air.

“Oh, I’m so sorry, sir,” the instructor says. “Your Reformer is set on the green spring. That has the most resistance. Let me change it to the easier blue spring.”

“She did that on purpose,” Tarp says to Hokte. “I’m going to show her how a warrior manhandles this machine.”

“Don’t,” Hokte says.

Tarp raises his hands high in the air. With all of his might he quickly thrusts his hands downward to his waist. The carriage leaps into action. It slides quickly toward the back of the Reformer then snaps back towards the front. The carriage collides violently into a stop bar and the momentum catapults Tarp off the Reformer and high into the air. His body flies high and he somersaults as his T-Rex arms helplessly claw at the air. He crash lands across the room and lies motionless, slumped against the wall. Pilates has just fried the Frybread Boy.

Clad in his pink Tutu and holding an umbrella, Tarp dances and sings, “I’m singing in the rain, just singing in the rain...”. A police cruiser crawls by, the officers staring intently at Tarp. Tarp grins sheepishly, cocks his head, shrugs his shoulders, and turns his palms upwards as he slowly shuffles away.

SOUND THE ALARM WANTS SAFER COMMUNITIES

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS, OKMULGEE EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT, AND MNGE TEAMED UP TO INSTALL FREE SMOKE ALARMS AND MORE

BY THOMAS JACKSON
REPORTER

OKMULGEE – Okmulgee Emergency Management recently teamed up with the Muscogee Nation Gaming Enterprises and the American Red Cross Tulsa Area Chapter to install free smoke alarms for Okmulgee families during the American Red Cross Sound the Alarm event on July 19.

Volunteers knocked on doors, installed more than 75 free smoke alarms, and provided safety information to more than 115 people. The team also helped residents create escape plans in the event of a fire in their homes.

Lorinda Driskill, one of the volunteers and the general manager of the Duck Creek Casino, felt privileged to be able to take part in the event.

“Helping to organize our volunteers and working alongside them is just one more way we can help make Okmulgee citizens safe in their homes,” Driskill said.

“Sound the Alarm is about more than installing smoke alarms. It’s about providing peace of mind and building a safer community for all generations.”

These statements were echoed by Jeff Moore, the Director of Okmulgee Emergency Management.

“Saving lives is important work, and I’m proud to see so many groups coming together so we can serve citizens throughout Okmulgee. I look forward to seeing what we can all accomplish as partners,” Moore said.

As a result of the event’s success, the Red Cross intends to organize another installation event in the future, according to a press release by the Tulsa Area Chapter.

'THE MVSKOKE NEWS' EXPLANATION OF TEXT SIZE LIMITATIONS

One issue is compatibility between our paper layout program and those used by MCN Finance/Human Resources to compile the information. We place the documents they submit directly in our program rather than pulling each individual’s information. This is done in order to save a significant amount of time and drastically eliminate the margin for error on our end. The submitted files create a scaling issue in the way they are sized in contrast to the newspaper pages. The other involves the number of pages we can afford in our budget for each edition.
